POSSE RUSHED TO LOCATION WHERE PAIR LAST SEEN

Tanko And Hall Believed Hiding In Timbered Area Near Colfax

SACRAMENTO, May 6.—A fresh posse headed by Captain of Detectives P. C. Gamble left here early today for Cape Horn to aid in the search for Tanko and Hall, escaped San Quentin murderers.

More than 1,000 men are now taking part in the sensational man hunt, one of the greatest in California's history, police reported here today.

The new posse will be rushed directly to the point where the two bandits were last seen and will relieve the tired men who chased the desperadoes during the night in the vicinity of Colfax.

Believed Hiding In Heavy Timbered Area

COLFAX, Cal., May 6.—Joe Tanko and Floyd Hall, San Quentin murderers, continued their sensational flight today. Believed hiding somewhere near the Sierra snow line after eluding a dozen posses, the two desperadoes were sought today over a wide territory without success in the vicinity of Cape Horn.

The area where the men are believed to be hiding today is heavily timbered and officers expressed the opinion the escaped convicts were safely hidden for the present at least. Last night the men were chased on a hill three miles from here. Shots were fired at them but they escaped in the darkness and were not thought to have been hit by any bullets from the possemen.

Any doubt that the two men chased by the posses now in wild pursuit were not Tanko and Hall was dispelled when it was learned that they had been positively identified by William Brown, driver of the automobile stage which was commandeered by the desperadoes yesterday in a sensational holdup.

Pursuers Foiled

Brown declared he was absolutely certain the two men who

REAR-ADMIRAL FLAYS WEAK NAVAL BASE

Naval Officer Says Capital Ships Unable To Enter Hawaiian Harbor

By WILLIAM G. CAYCE
For International News Service.

HONOLULU, May 6.—Umpires in the joint army-navy fleet maneuvers were preparing today to write finis to the grand critique which followed the mimic war in a six-day lesson to 800 officers of the American forces. They started preparation of the final report on the maneuvers this morning. The winner of the mimic battle will not be announced.

While no official announcement of the secret sessions has been made, it was learned the high officers attending were much pleased with the co-operation shown between the army and navy forces, and the maneuvers were reported as instructive.

Eleven of the umpires sailed today for the United States on the steamship Sierra. They were: Colonels F. P. Lahm, W. P. Cruikshank, H. J. Brees, J. K. Partello, C. S. Lincoln and W. C. Short; Majors C. M. Milliken, W. H. Hobson, J. S. Pratt and L. C. Chambers, and Lieutenant Colonel W. H. Raymond.

Rear Admiral John D. McDonald, speaking before the Honolulu Rotary club, and commandant of the Fourteenth naval district, pointed out the inadequate features of Pearl harbor as a naval base, saying capital ships were unable to enter the harbor, and that further improvement of the harbor was essential.

Admiral Cites Proof

As proof of his statement, the admiral pointed to the fleet riding outside the harbor, declaring "it should be inside the harbor. Look at those ships out there, where they don't belong. They belong inside Pearl harbor, but they can't get in. In the navy department, at Washington, anyone may dig down in the records and there find letters I wrote last year urging improvement of Pearl harbor.'

Naval officers who refused to be quoted, charged that eighteen oil tanks of the Doheny company, valued at $10,000,000, were rapidly going to ruin from rust near Pearl harbor because the heads of the navy and interior department were unable to put the smallest amount of oil into them until the government suit against the Doheny interests over holdings in naval reserves in the Elk Hills, California, oil district was settled.

"Rampant lawlessness, increasing by leaps and bounds, is forcing Iowa to face the problem of either demanding strict enforcement of the present prohibition laws or else of modifying these laws to permit the sale of light wines and beer," the report issued by Superintendent S. P. McNaught said.

CONSPIRATORS BEING TRIED IN SOFIA

Clang Of Chains Heard As Alleged Bombers Face Military Court

SOFIA, May 6.—The clank of chains as in feudal days sounded in the military courtroom today where the alleged conspirators are on trial for bombing Sveti Kral cathedral with a loss of almost 200 lives. All of the prisoners were heavily chained.

Friedman, one of the reputed bombers, testified that the Communist organization formed companies and battalions of Communists throughout the country. He said there was plenty of money available and that most of it came from the Communist leader, Yankhoff, who, he said, never explained its source. He said he had handled thousands of dollars in one month.

All members were ordered to carry two pistols as well as poison, and to kill themselves rather than submit to arrest, Friedman testified.

Verdict Expected

LONDON, May 6.—A verdict against those found guilty in the bombing of the Kral cathedral was expected by Friday or Saturday, according to Agency despatches today from Sofia.

Gelezkoff, president of the Sofia Cheka or Soviet secret service, admitted today to acting as courier between the agrarian exiles and the Communist party, the despatches said.

RUM CHASERS SCARE OUT RUNNERS

Price Of 'Scotch' Skyrockets As 'Lady Of Spyglass' Traps Bootleggers

LYNN, Mass. May 6.—As twenty-five crack rum chasers sailed out of New England ports today to join the dry armada mobilized off "rum row," a band of daring rum runners were trapped by "The Lady of the Spyglass."

The woman, as yet unidentified, watched liquor being unloaded at Winthrop highlands and notified police. Three men escaped, leaving their liquor on the beach.

As the "Lady of the Spyglass" continued her mysterious watch from some nook along the shore, word came from New Bedford that two rum chasers had put out of the harbor there, that one had sailed out of Portland, Me., and that twenty-two others had quietly slipped out of other New England ports.

Rise In Liquor Prices As Rum Vessels Are 'Bottled'

NEW YORK, May 6.—Bucking a forty-mile gale, twelve additional coast guard vessels put to sea early today to reinforce the government fleet that has so successfully "bottled up" the foreign vessels at Rum Row that not a single case of whiskey or champagne was smuggled into New York in the last twenty-four hours.

With real "Scotch" whisky having been freely offered in the market throughout New York at $6 a bottle, and a case at from $40 to $60—depending on quality—a sharp rise came in the price. In the uptown district prices were being quoted at $75 for the real stuff.

The sudden activity of the government, following closely the institution of the "padlock court" and, District Attorney Bruckner's campaign against New York's famed "supper clubs" was expected to shoot the price of liquor to the highest point since the Volstead measure became a law.

One of the swiftest motor boats in the rum trade was a charred mass of wood and iron at Seabright, N. J., today. Its cost was placed at $35,000. A man, unidentified, but who government officers said they believed was the owner of the boat, set fire to it after it had been seized.

Sees End of 'Trade'

A number of the coast guard vessels are equipped with one-pound guns. These, officials said, were to warn vessels, rather than for the purpose of attack. While no definite instructions were given the government fleet, it was said no attempt would be made to board any of the rum vessels because of their foreign registry. The most effective means of stopping the smuggling will be to keep the rum fleet "hemmed in," it was said.

H. Q. Merrick, federal prohibition director of New York, said he believed rum runners were beginning to feel the full weight of government enforcement and that bootleggers soon would be looking for new occupations.

French Slay 500 Riffians In Battle; Plan New Attack

PARIS, May 6.—Five hundred Riffians under Abdel Krim were killed in a "recent engagement," the French foreign office announced today. The French losses were given as four officers and a dozen native soldiers.

The Riffian casualties occurred among a force of 5000 which has been operating against the French line of outposts and blockhouses. An additional force of 25,000 tribesmen is concentrating for a major attack against the French forces occupying the French zone of the Moroccan protectorate.

The success of the French was achieved on both flanks and was preliminary to a more general advance.

The Riffians are being reinforced by tribesmen who have, until the advance of the French last fall, occupied a sort of neutral zone between the French and Spanish zones. Many of these natives have been forced to join the Riffians. Some of the prisoners taken by the French belong to these border tribes.

The border tribesmen are in a precarious position. They are exposed on one side to incursions by the Riffs and on the other to reprisals by the French in event of joining with the pretender, Abdel Krim, in his proposed advance against Fez.

The Riffians are provided with artillery and seem to have ample ammunition. They have considerable strategical skill, and show rash bravery, but are unable to withstand the French fighting.

GRADE SCHOOL BOND ISSUE DISCUSSED

Committee Of Fifteen Will Make Survey; May Put Sites Up Separately

Before giving their recommendations for an elementary school bond issue in Glendale to the Board of Education, members of the advisory committee of fifteen will make an inspecting tour of the schools of the city, visiting at the same time all proposed sites, tentatively included in the plans of the school authorities.

The committee of fifteen citizens met with the Board of Education last night and after preliminary discussion, decided to visit the schools and proposed school sites Friday morning, starting at 9 o'clock. Superintendent Richardson D. White and A. F. Priest, architect, will accompany the committee members on the tour.

Immediately following the inspection of the schools and sites, the committee will meet at the Board of Education offices and determine on its recommendations, later calling the board members into conference to render a report.

May Split Issue

It was indicated at the first meeting of the committee last night that one major change may be recommended in placing the school bond issue before the people. The advisability of splitting the issue, allowing the voters to ballot separately on the amounts to be used for additional school buildings and the appropriations for proposed new sites which will not be built on until later, was discussed.

The question of splitting the bond issue, so that the approximate $225,000 to be asked for sites only, will be voted on separately, was raised by C. S. Dunning, member of the committee, who declared many persons who might vote for additional schools will balk at expenditures for sites that are not to be used.

Further Discussion

He said separating the two issues would insure these favorable votes for the necessary new buildings. The matter will come up for further discussion after the advisory committee has completed its inspection.

Although official action was withheld until after the inspection tour, it was tentatively decided that the bond issue shall come up on June 16 along with the city bond issue for a memorial building calling for $150,000. The committee will embody this recommendation in its report to the school board, it was said.

Plan for Survey

The proposed itinerary for the advisory committee will consume all day Friday, Superintendent White said. It will call for a comprehensive survey of the whole school situation in Glendale. Deliberation of the committee and its final report will be worked out late Friday afternoon and will probably be presented to the Board of Education on Friday night.

Members of the committee of fifteen were announced at the outset of the meeting last night by Mrs. A. A. Barton, president of the School Board. Fourteen of the fifteen have been named, Mrs. Barton said. They are: Alex Mitchell, chairman; C. S. Dunning, William Baker, H. V. Adams, Stephen C. Packer, M. Walters, Peter Ferry, L. H. Wilson, Paul E. Stillman, Herman Nelson, C. L. Jenkins, W. E. Hewitt and Bert P. Woodard. A fifteenth member is yet to be named.

BRILLIANT AFFAIR COMPLETE SUCCESS

Various Events Please Large Crowd at Tuesday Afternoon Clubhouse Last Night; Announce Concert Course

By KATHERINE V. SINKS
Of The Evening News Staff.

A banquet attended by more than 150 talented musicians, music-lovers and guests; the presentation of a musical program of supreme excellence, and the announcement of a musical concert course for 1925-1926 in the Broadway High school featuring Ballester, Lashanska, Matzenauer, Samaroff and other world artists, combined in making the gathering of Glendale Music club last night at Tuesday Afternoon clubhouse an event of import in the musical world.

"The Most Musical City in the United States," was a slogan suggested for Glendale two years ago by Mrs. Mattison Boyd Jones, club founder and president. Last night her organization gave proof of fruitful efforts in that direction.

Under the direction of Mrs. Colin Cable, hospitality chairman, dinner tables were artistically arranged in the banquet hall. Mrs. Jones' daughter, Miss Winifred Jones, had decorated the tables most effectively, using huge bouquets of carnations and other spring flowers, and flat decorations the length of the tables.

Presents Honor Guests

Mrs. Mattison Boyd Jones presided over the dinner hour, introducing as honored guests: Jessie McDonald Patterson, a charter member of the club; Calmon Luboviski, violinist; Mrs. Luboviski, D. H. Smith, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Frank L. Fox, president of the Kiwanis club; Mrs. Fox, William Baker, president of the Exchange club; Mrs. Baker, C. J. Hatz, president of Glendale Merchants' association, and city councilman; Mrs. Hatz, S. C. Kinch, city councilman; Mrs. Kinch, R. H. Cowan, representing The Glendale Evening News; Mrs. Cowan, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Rowsey, Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, president of the Tuesday Afternoon club; A. W. Tower, president of the high school board; Mrs. Tower, Mrs. R. E. Chase, prominent in dramatic affairs; Rev. Ernest E. Ford, pastor of First Baptist church; Mrs. Ford.

Excellent Program

During the dinner hour Miss Ruth Thompson, accomplished pianist and composer of Long Beach, played two of her own compositions, "The Brook" and "Spanish Dance." Miss Ruth Cowan, who has charge of all tickets sold at the Philharmonic auditorium, Los Angeles, was introduced and complimented Glendale on the brilliant musical course sponsored by the Music club for next year. Glenn Dolberg, Glendale baritone, who won honors in the recent Eisteddfod, sang "Even Bravest Hearts May Swell" from "Faust," and "Little Mother o' Mine." He was accompanied by Mrs. E. R. Ripley.

Dr. James Whitcomb Brougher, pastor of the Temple Baptist church, Los Angeles, known nation-wide as orator and humorist, was the dinner speaker.

Decries Jazz Music

"Music is the expression of the divine in the human soul," Dr. Brougher emphasized during his brief talk, which was a happy combination of the humorous and serious. In closing he decried the popularity of jazz music, saying "Jazz is destroying the taste of young people for that which is higher."

Mrs. Jones introduced as retiring members of the club board Mrs. Eva Cunningham, Mrs. Frank Arnold, Mrs. Helen I. Campbell, Mrs. E. R. Ripley, Mrs. Frank Thomas; also Miss Gertrude Cleophas, Mrs. Perry Rogers, Miss Zula Zeigler; and, as members of the new board, Mrs. Edwin Cleophas, first vice-president; Miss Myrtle Baldwin, second vice-president; Mrs. Roberta T. Young, recording secretary; Mrs. Colin Cable, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. L. Marlenee, auditor; Miss Neva Vesey, financial secretary; Mrs. Harry Greenwalt, parliamentarian; Mrs. J. T. Edwards, R. M. Butts, A. J. Shepard, Wesley Kuhnle, directors. Illness and other engagements presented several of the retiring officers and officers-elect from being present. Mrs. Warren Roberts, who has served the club as treasurer ever since organization, and who has been re-elected, was unable to be present because of illness. Mrs. L. N. Hagood, historian, was also unable to be present.

Big Crowd Present

To John Smallman, musician and director of nation-wide prominence, go honors for the program enjoyed later by over 700 people gathered in the auditorium. The response of singers to his directing is almost uncanny, so perfectly do they respond. For two years members of the oratorio department of Glendale Music club, have been privileged to work under Mr. Smallman, and last night they brought praise to him and to themselves in their splendid work. The choral numbers were three chorales from "Christmas Oratorio"; "Pater Noster" (Tschaikowsky); "Listen to the Lambs" (R. Nathaniel Dett); "Russian Choral Fantasy" (Gaines); "Italian Salad" (a musical jest) (Genee.) The pianissimo work was beautifully rendered.

A feature of these numbers was the fine soprano solo work by Mrs. Harry McMullin in the Dett number and in the final number, a clever arrangement of musical terms, to music in the form of the finale to an Italian opera.

Accompaniments were played by Florence Hoover Rogers, pianist, whose work with the oratorio department, has won her much praise.

Announces Events

Assisting with the program was Calmon Luboviski, well-known violinist of Southern California. He was accompanied by Morris Wolfson. American music lovers have accorded Mr. Luboviski many honors and Glendale Music club is fortunate to claim him as a very loyal friend. In the Russian choral number Mr. Luboviski and Julia Gardner furnished a wonderfully beautiful obligato for two violins.

Another feature of the program was the singing of the Apollo Male quartet, Albert Broad, Floyd Brown, Loren Robinson, Cliff Bates. They were heartily applauded and called back for many encores.

During the intermission in the program Mrs. Jones greeted club members and guests, announcing the course of seven supreme events for next year. Among the artists to be presented are Vincente Ballester, baritone; Hulda Lashanska, lyric soprano; Margaret Matzenauer, contralto; Olga Samaroff, pianist.

Praise for Director

Mrs. Jones also spoke of the splendid work of the oratorio department, and presented Miss Myrtle Baldwin, chairman, with a bouquet of spring flowers. She also praised Mr. Smallman for his accomplishments as a director.

"Mr. Smallman is doing more for the gospel of good music than any person I know in Southern California," said Mrs. Jones.

Each one attending the concert received a souvenir program, containing the evening's program, and a brief history of the Music club.

On behalf of the club Mrs. Eva Cunningham presented Mrs. Jones with a basket of flowers.

RESIGNS TWO PROTECTIVE POSITIONS

Percy J. Hayselden Quits Fire And Flood Control Organization Work

Percy J. Hayselden, chairman of the fire and flood control committee of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce and civilian director of the Angeles Forest Protective association, representing the Glendale chamber on that body, resigned both posts when the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce met yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Hayselden, in a communication addressed to the board, said that he wanted to be relieved of the extra burdens and duties imposed upon him as head of the flood and fire control work in Glendale. He said that for this reason he is also resigning as chief of the Glendale division of the Angeles Forest Protective association, a position to which he was elected when that organization was first brought into being.

Praise for Work

Acceptance of the resignation of Mr. Hayselden with deepest regrets was moved by Director Harry G. MacBain, after President D. E. Smith of the chamber had praised Mr. Hayselden for his untiring work in behalf of the Chamber of Commerce and the city of Glendale and had urged he be asked to reconsider his action.

Secretary Howard I. Wood said Mr. Hayselden was anxious to be relieved of the duties that have kept him tied so closely, so that he can spend more time on his own business. He denied that Mr. Hayselden's resignation was the result of a controversy over the recently-enacted firecracker ordinance in Glendale. He said that the action has been contemplated by Mr. Hayselden for several months.

A resolution of appreciation for his work as fire and flood control chairman will be presented to Mr. Hayselden. His successor will be named by President Smith some time before the next meeting of the board.

Morgan, to meet a like committee from the Sunland Chamber of Commerce to consider the advisability of combining the two organizations. After other routine business, the meeting adjourned to the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Henry on Hill street, for a housewarming. A delightful evening was spent. E. M. DAVIDS NEW C. OF C. DIRECTOR

Tropico Potteries' Treasurer Unanimously Elected To Vacancy On Board

E. M. Davids, executive officer of the Topico Potteries, and for seventeen years identified with the business and industrial growth of Glendale, was appointed to the board of directors of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Davids was named to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of George J. Lyons a week ago. He will take his place on the board at its next meeting, Tuesday, May 12.

When the matter of choosing a successor to Mr. Lyons came before the board at its meeting yesterday, Director Frank Fox, vice-president of the chamber, placed the nomination of Mr. Davids.

"Virtually all other interests excepting our industries are represented on the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce," Director Fox declared in making the nomination. "I believe that Mr. Davids, representing our largest industrial enterprise, will make a valuable addition to the board."

Election Unanimous

The nomination was seconded by Director Harry G. MacBain. There were no other nominations, the election of Mr. Davids being recorded as unanimous.

Mr. Davids has been connected with the Tropico Potteries for a period of seventeen years, having become associated with the industry in its "infant" days when Tropico was an independent municipality. After the potteries were acquired by the Gladding McBean Co. of San Francisco, Mr. Davids became treasurer of the larger organization, the position which he holds at the present time.

JUDGE LOWE ACTS TO GAIN RESPECT

Police Magistrate Imposes Fine, Jail Sentence For Contempt

Demanding that the orders of the Glendale police court be held in greater respect, Judge F. H. Lowe today held S. A. Sands, Long Beach real estate salesman, in contempt of court and sentenced him to serve one day in the county jail and pay a fine of $25. Sands was also required to post bond for his appearance in court as a witness for the state on May 13 in the case against Ray Bailey, charged with grand larceny.

Upon an urgent plea by Sands' employer Judge Lowe agreed to suspend the one-day jail sentence and placed an alternative of twenty-five days in the county jail for failure to pay the $25 fine by this afternoon.

Sands was subpoenaed several days ago to appear in court at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon to testify at the hearing of Bailey, alias Ben H. Kennedy, who is charged with the theft of an automobile from a Glendale auto rental agency. He is one of the star witnesses for the state. A half dozen other witnesses were present when the case was called yesterday. Because of Sands' absence the case had to be continued until May 13.

Accused Makes Plea

Urging leniency, Sands told Judge Lowe that he had started to Glendale from Long Beach four hours before he was required to appear in court, but that the automobile broke down, a garage failed to answer a call for a service car, passing motorists refused to give him a ride, and when he tried to repair the carburetor of his machine he was unable to get it together properly and so was delayed.

"There are too many people trying to make a football of this police court," declared Judge Lowe. "I am not inclined to deal leniently in cases of this kind. In the future witnesses that have been summoned must be here when they are told, or they will go to jail."

The directors deferred action until the matter is taken up with the Glendale Merchants' association. June 16 to 20 are the tentative dates set for the exposition.

Glendale Motor Car Association Names Officers and Directors; Plenty of Fun, Fishing, Sport at Hi Jinks

By MERRILL D. DAVIS
Of The Evening News Staff.

FOREST HOME, May 6.—William A. Tanner, of the firm of Tanner & Hall, Ltd., Buick dealers, was unanimously chosen president of the Glendale Motor Car Dealers' association at the business meeting held last night in connection with the fourth annual Hi Jinks party of the dealers and their friends.

P. A. Kelley, head of the Kelley Motor Co., Hudson and Essex dealers, was named vice-president, and M. B. Towman, of the Automobile Club of Southern California, was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

The directors of the association chosen at the business meeting are: Don C. Packer, Packer Motor Co., Inc., Studebaker dealers; James V. Hough, Chevrolet dealer; W. A. Tanner, Charles McDaniels, McDaniels Motor Co., Nash dealers, and Lyman P. Clark, Glendale Motor Car Co., Chrysler and Maxwell dealers.

Plenty of Fun

The business session was sandwiched in between the fun and frolic that mark the annual Hi Jinks parties of the motor car dealers. Seventy dealers, salesmen and their friends are here for the event, arriving at 4:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after driving over the eighty-five miles of mountain roads from Glendale in three hours and fifteen minutes, a new record for caravan travel.

Mr. Tanner, in accepting his office as president of the association, thanked the members of the order for the confidence they had shown in him, and said:

"Since the organization of the forerunner of the present-day association, five years ago, I have been interested in the development and growth of the Glendale Motor Car Dealers' association. It has created a better feeling between dealers in Glendale and surrounding cities. It has done much to promote a feeling of good will in our chosen line, and will aid in making Glendale a bigger and better city."

Fleet of Foot

C. H. Hunter, Oldsmobile dealer, and chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements, directed the sport events. W. H. Daniel, of the Dixie Motor Co., Packard dealers, out-Paddocked Paddock in the 100-yard dash. The tie was announced as eight seconds, but Mr. Hunter found out afterwards that his watch had stopped, and there was a question as to whether "Dixie" Daniel stepped the century in 18 or 28 seconds. All agreed that it was under one minute, anyway.

The Packer Motor Co., Inc., Studebaker dealers, was represented at the Hi Jinks party by Don C. Packer and several salesmen from the firm. In yesterday's account of the caravan leaving, the name of the firm was omitted by error.

K. F. Butler, motorcycle officer of Glendale, who is one of the honored guests at the party, stepped out fast enough to win the fifty-yard dash over a heavy field. M. B. Towman placed all standing Olympic and world records in danger when he won in the standing broad jump, while Malvern Barker carried off honors in the running broad jump.

Gets Frst Limit.

A. C. Kennedy of Pasadena won the prize for turning in the first limit-catch of trout, landing his last one just a few minutes before William C. Vaus of the Packer Motor Co., Inc., pulled in a big trout that put his string in the limit class.

Several other limit catches were reported, and many of the motor car dealers are expecting to take home a supply of fish this afternoon. This morning the members of the party, under the guidance of Frank Culver, jovial proprietor of Forest Home, inspected the government fish hatcheries near here.

Dealers and salesmen who were not busy fishing, participating in the sports events or otherwise having a good time, were busy cavorting around in the big swimming pool. The weather was ideal for swimming, and the dealers donned their bathing suits for an early morning plunge.

Homeward Bound

A program of entertainment, voted the best that had been produced at any of the Hi Jinks parties of the dealers, was presented last night. The members of the party expressed their opinions that the Hi Jinks party this year was the biggest and best ever held by the dealers.

The homeward-bound caravan will leave Forest Home this afternoon about 3:30 o'clock, and is expected to arrive in Glendale around 7 o'clock tonight.

SUPERVISORS TO AID BRIDGE WORK

Willing To Give $600,000 Of Road Tax Fund If L. A. Council Willing

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors today agreed to appropriate approximately $600,000 from the 1926 road tax funds alloted to the city of Los Angeles for the construction of new bridges over the Los Angeles river at Glendale boulevard and Fletcher drive, provided the consent of Los Angeles city can be gotten by advocates of the bridge projects.

Four of the supervisors, Cogswell, McClellan, Woodley and Wright, met with a delegation representing cities of county most vitally affected by the two proposed bridges. They told the delegates that the supervisors are willing to appropriate 50 per cent of the cost of the bridges, this money to come from the county road tax funds and to be charged to the road tax allotment of the city of Los Angeles. Both bridges are wholly within the city limits of Los Angeles. With this understanding it is planned to place the remaining amount necessary for the bridges on the Los Angeles city ballot in the form of a $600,000 bond issue at the June election.

Seek Approval

In order to gain the promised appropriation from the county it will now be necessary for the bridge advocates to gain the consent of the Los Angeles City Council that $600,000 of their allotment be used for the bridges. This, it is believed, the council will readily agree to.

Advocates of the new bridges hailed the action of the supervisors as a great victory for their bridge projects. They pointed out that with the approval of the Los Angeles City Council and the additional $600,000 on the June ballot as a Los Angeles city bond issue, new bridges are practically assured.

Representatives of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, including Vice-President George B. Karr, Secretary Howard I. Wood and L. T. Rowley, chairman of the highways and bridges committee, appeared before the supervisors today.

AN EXPLANATION—
Seldom explains anything to one who is looking for trouble.
Is better left unspoken if it is to be only half the truth.
Is always of greater value if offered before it is asked for.
Is always more honorable than a quarrel.
Is sometimes the sole price one has to pay for peace.
Would sometimes be unnecessary if friendship had never been betrayed.

COMMERCIAL AVIATION

Commercial aviation, long delayed in the United States, seems about to begin on a scale comparable with that of Europe. Less than a month ago the Maiden Dearborn, first of the Ford air transports, made its maiden voyage from Detroit to Chicago with 1000 pounds of freight in two hours and fifty minutes, returning to Detroit the same day and cutting the train time between the two cities in half. This flight marks the beginning of an extensive air service, it is said, which will link the Ford centers of the middle west.

The General Airways System is scheduled to start this fall. There will be a fleet of all-metal biplanes having Pullman accommodations for eight passengers each and a ton of freight besides. They will fly daily between Boston and Minneapolis, stopping at New York, Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago. Everything will be ready before the service starts, all preventable risks being eliminated. There will be landing fields and terminal airdromes for the regular stops en route, emergency landing places every five or ten miles, with radio beacons at regular distances all the way. Pilots will have dependable compasses and flight indicators, enabling them to fly in fog, rain or snow, maintaining an even keel without seeing the ground. Passengers will pay about 15 cents a mile at first, but prices will probably come down as air transportation develops.

Regular air passenger service was established a week or two ago between San Francisco and Fresno. Later, it is expected that this will be extended to Los Angeles.

The government is planning experiments expected to stimulate the development of commercial aviation. Under the Kelly law, passed by the last Congress, the postoffice department is empowered to contract with private individuals for the carrying of mail through the air, and already the government is advertising for bids.

America was a long time getting started in commercial aviation, but now that we have started it is only a matter of a very short time until flying will be an important part of American business life and most of us now living will take air travel as a matter of course before we die. There is a great future in the air and Glendale, through a few progressive citizens and pioneers in aviation, is helping to bring it nearer.

IDENTIFICATION LABELS

It is said that the people of France are to be required to wear metal tags, as their soldiers did in the war, and for a similar purpose. There would be some justification for such a custom in this country, also, where the hazards of peace are becoming comparable to those of war. People are injured or killed every day and there is no possible means of identification. There is a great tendency, also, for people to wander away and forget who they are.

However, metal tags are troublesome and likely to be forgotten or discarded. Those who wish to conceal their identity and even forget it could conveniently lose their tags. Someone suggests that when the time comes when we have to be labeled for identification purposes, branding, after the manner of western cattle, would be more effectual than wearing tags.

But, perhaps a suggestion made by a Pennsylvania surgeon, who proposes that operating surgeons shall leave their names permanently upon their patients, would serve the purpose, since so many of us succumb to the knife, sooner or later. This surgeon, Dr. Kane, says he is now inscribing upon his patients, by the simple method of the tattoo, his last initial in radio code. Artists and sculptors affix their names to completed masterpieces, he says, artisans place their marks on their handiwork and the tradesman uses a trademark. So far, none of his patients have made any objections, some have failed to discover the slight disfigurement and others have been pleased by it.

MODERN ENGLISH

Those who pride themselves upon the use of good English find that a knowledge of the language in its purity is not sufficient these days and that considerable mental agility is required to understand everything that is spoken and written. We have flapper dialect, bandit dialect, sport-page dialect, golf English, Congressional Record English and as many others as there are classes and groups to originate and use words that are especially forceful in those groups.

Along this line the New Haven Register says: "The gist of unheard-of-expression for one day is sufficient to keep a reasonably well-educated man busy all of his spare time trying to figure out the meaning of the news. Studying hieroglyphics on an Egyptian mummy's casket is easy in comparison with trying to understand fully all of the news in any given edition of any one of our modern dailies."

New words live if they are forceful and fill a need and many words not in good repute today will eventually find their way into the dictionary and will be employed by those who know and use only good English.

KELLOGG STANDS FIRM

The Soviet government of Russia failed to frighten or cajole the new American secretary of state into reversing the policy of Secretary Hughes in regard to the recognition of Russia. Their drive for recognition was short-lived. Instead of opening negotiations with the Bolshevists at Moscow as they had hoped to lead him to do, Secretary Kellogg informed the Reds that America is standing pat on the Coolidge-Hughes program and that America will recognize Russia when her spokesmen are prepared to accept the laws of nations as the basis for negotiations. Until then we have no dealings with Moscow.

The Soviets believed that the United States would recognize Russia the day that Charles Evans Hughes left the cabinet, but they were disappointed. Senator Borah, in whom they placed great confidence and who has more than once expressed himself in favor of recognition, is strangely silent.

Now we are told that Russia, China and Japan are about to form an entente for the control of the Pacific, and American newspaper publishers pay cable tolls on such bunk.

Those who judged men by their clothes are all dead now. They were foolish enough to judge hootch by the label.

If the brain leaves considerable parking space inside the skull the germ of swellhead will find it sooner or later.

God made the dry land. It is up to man to make the land dry.

AGAIN!

How to Get Along

By DR. FRANK CRANE

There was abundant electricity in the world before modern inventors found out how to adjust machinery to it, but it did not turn any wheels. Steam had been roaring and hissing ever since Eve first boiled eggs in Paradise, but it never pulled any railroad trains or ran any grist mills until Mr. Watt came along and broke it into harness.

All of which goes to show that it is not only strength you need so much as the ability to use other forces than your own.

The motto of the big man, the outstanding master man, the super-efficiency expert, is not "Do it yourself," but, "Never do anything that you can get somebody else to do."

The successful man is the adjuster. The man who can do, may get $25.00 a week. The man who can get things done will get $200.00, and not put forth any great effort.

It is not work the world pays for. It is Adjustment.. The general manager gets $25,000 a year, and he earns it, too; because he makes the work of all those under him worth more. Skill, craft, gumption, "the know how," in other words, the gift of adjustment, is the money earner.

Now all this has its bearing upon your individual problem.

Adjustment accomplishes more than sweat and backache.

It overcomes more sin than prayer and fasting.

It subdues more obstacles, removes more mountains, and fills up more valleys than hustle and perserverance.

It is better than love potions, or efforts to please, or flowers, or flattery, in the matter of gaining love or of keeping it.

Why don't you get along with your family, for instance? Why are you getting estranged from your wife, and losing your hold upon your children? You ponder the problem in despair. You have not been neglectful of your duties, you have been "upright, kind and free from error"—integer vitae scelerisque purus—and all that. What, you ask, can you do that you have not done?

Why, nothing, perhaps, except the one thing needful. You have not studied to find out what they are, and to adjust yourself to that. All your calculations are based upon their changing, becoming different. Suppose you change. Suppose you simply accept them exactly as they are, and try to adjust yourself to that. And see what happens.

Horoscope

Jupiter and Mercury in malefic aspect rule this day, according to astrology. Neptune is friendly early in the morning.

The Moon is in Libra, an airy, movable sign ruled by Venus and governing the back.

Under the planetary rule judgment is likely to be impaired and business leases precipitated, so it is well to be very careful while the configuration prevails.

It is a most unfortunate rule under which to speculate, but many temptations will assail men and women at this time.

The stock market will be exceedingly uncertain and its sudden fluctuations will disturb certain business conditions, the seers warn.

It is well to defer all initiative until more fortunate conditions are read in the position of the stars.

In the evening of this day ordinary interests should be pushed, but nothing important should even be planned.

Seductive and pleasant vibrations may be registered by sensitive persons at this time when psychic influences should be strong.

The seers predict that many communications from the other world will come through to warn of threatening war or other calamities.

Again many poets will sing, for Neptune is in a place said to encourage vision and understanding.

Mars is in a position that is certainly menacing to the peace of England, where there is to be an eventful summer, it is prophesied.

Saturn setting presages new trouble for Moscow and many threats from the Soviet government.

Persons whose birthdate it is should not speculate or risk money, but instead attend carefully to business. Journeys may cause trouble.

Children born on this day may be extravagant and given to change. These subjects of Taurus often are self-willed, but they usually reach high place.

Today's Poem

THE MEETING OF THE WATERS

There is not in the wide world a valley so sweet
As that vale in whose bosom the bright waters meet;
Oh! the last rays of feeling and life must depart,
Ere the bloom of that valley shall fade from my heart.

Yet it was not that nature had shed o'er the scene
Her purest of crystal and brightest of green;
'Twas not her soft magic of streamlet or hill,
Oh! no—it was something more exquisite still.

'Twas that friends, the beloved of my bosom, were here,
Who made every dear scene of enchantment more dear,
And who felt how the best charms of nature improve,
When we see them reflected from looks that we love.

Sweet vale of Avoca! how calm could I rest
In thy bosom of shade, with the friends I love best,
Where the storms that we feel in this cold world should cease,
And our hearts, like thy waters, be mingled in peace.

—THOMAS MOORE.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNAIRD

Ovid observed that "all things change, nothing perishes."

Change is constant. All things must change to something new, to something strange.

Everything that is created is changed by the laws of nature.

Yet Man, as he changes, fights change.

History teaches us that he prefers overturning things to changing them.

* * *

The conflict of the old, the existing, the continuing, with development, improvement, and reform, is always the same.

CLARK KINNAIRD

Goethe opines that order of every kind turns out at last to pedantry, and to get rid of the one, people destroy the other; and so it goes on for a while, until people perceive that order must be established

"Classicism and Romanticism; close corporations and freedom of trade; the maintenance of large estates and the division of the land—it is always the same conflict which ends by producing a new one.

"The best policy of those in power could be so to moderate this conflict as to right itself without the destruction of either element.

"But this has not been granted to men, and it seems not to be the will of God."

The poets offer us empty consolation. In his Prometheus Shelley ecstatically exults:

Neither to change, nor falter, nor repent;
This, like thy glory, Titan! is to be
Good, great, and joyous, beautiful and free;
This is alone Life, Joy, Empire and Victory.

But there can be no victory over change.

Who's Who

An outstanding figure in the railroad industry who has shaped the destinies of the Southern Pacific railroad for many years, will retire as head of that system on May 31, after forty-eight years of continuous service. He is Julius Kruttschnitt.

Having passed the age of 70, Mr. Kruttschnitt announced recently that he would take advantage of the company's pension rules to sever his relations with the road.

Mr. Kruttschnitt will be succeeded as chairman of the executive committee and board of directors of the Southern Pacific by Henry W. Deforest, who since 1913 has directed the financial interests of the company.

Like many other men who have risen to high positions in industry, Mr. Kruttschnitt began his railroad career at the bottom of the ladder. Graduated from Washington and Lee university in 1873 with the degree of civil engineer, he taught school for five years, and then entered the service of the Morgans' Louisiana & Texas railroad and steamship company (now a part of the Southern Pacific) as an engineer in charge of construction.

Completing that work he was retained as roadmaster, receiving successive promotions as assistant chief engineer and general roadmaster, chief engineer and superintendent, assistant general manager of the Southern Pacific lines east of El Paso, and in 1887 general manager of that system.

In 1895 his jurisdiction as general manager was extended over the entire Southern Pacific system, with headquarters at San Francisco. This position, with additional responsibilities as vice-president, and as assistant to the president, was retained until 1904, when he was moved to Chicago and was placed in charge of the operations and maintenances of the combined Union Pacific and Southern Pacific properties, with title of director of maintenance and operation.

On the separation of these systems, in 1913, Mr. Kruttschnitt was elected chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific company, with headquarters at New York.

WHITE HOUSE NEWS TO BE GUARDED

President Coolidge Orders All Stenographic Reports Kept From Press

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The White House has ordered that the stenographic records of what the president says in his semi-weekly conferences with the press shall no longer be available to the newspapermen.

This is in line with the president's determination that he shall not be held responsible for the news he gives out but that the correspondents shall state everything on their own authority unless an official statement is issued.

There is nothing, of course, to prevent the individual correspondent from taking stenographic notes and some of them do, but the official record will no longer be available as heretofore.

The action of the White House has developed three distinct groups among the newspapermen, those who feel that it is the duty of the press to protect the president against interpretations that do not reflect credit upon him, those who interpret the president's remarks with the accustomed hostility of partisans which is true of a minority of the press always, and those who are endeavoring neither to reflect credit nor discredit on the president, but to steer an even keel, letting the information that is given out stand whether it helps or hurts the prestige of the president politically.

Neutral Attitude

This neutral attitude has been made more and more difficult to assume because the White House reserves the right to deny any information it gives out, particularly if that information shall disclose an inconsistency of statement on the part of the White House spokesman.

The truth of the matter is that the president is somewhat restive under the scrutiny of the newspapermen who have turned their powerful glasses on him since congress adjourned. Meeting Mr. Coolidge twice a week since congress went away has meant a better opportunity to study the Coolidge personality and to form their own conclusions about his method of conducting the government. It is no secret to reveal that many of the statements made to the correspondents, have indicated a lack of familiarity by the president of some of the big items in the news on which it had been supposed he would be informed.

The president's friends say in answer to this that he cannot be expected to know all that is going on inside the government. It has been suggested therefore in some quarters in fairness to Mr. Coolidge the written questions propounded by the press shall be handed in to him at least an hour before the press conferences begin so he may look up the many points under discussion.

European Method

In Europe, for instance, where the questioning of a premier in a parliament is called "interpellation," an executive is given at least a day in which to look up the facts. Mr. Coolidge has attempted off-hand to answer the queries of the press and has every now and then indicated in his answers something which contradicts what has been given out by one of his own cabinet. This would be prevented by the plan to have cabinet officers advised an hour ahead of the press conferences on what information is wanted.

It has even been suggested that the cabinet individually be prepared to sign such memoranda so that they can be held responsible for the statements made but even this is regarded as a delicate procedure because some of the cabinet officers are unwilling even in their individual conferences with the press daily to be quoted directly or indirectly.

Difficult Problem

The whole problem is engaging the thought of the president and his cabinet and there has even been talk of discontinuing the press conferences. Mr. Coolidge doesn't favor this and he thinks the communication with the press is a good thing and that the present system even with its defects is better than one that was in vogue a generation ago when the presidents did not receive the press in a body.

From the viewpoint of the newspapermen, the policy of the government in placing all responsibility on the correspondent is producing much discussion because of the charges being made here and there that the government is anxious to use the press for its own purposes, but is not willing to be responsible for impressions or references, however accurate they may be, which may not always turn out to the advantage of the administration.

News Surpressed

There are indications that the president would like to be relieved of the scrutiny of the correspondents during the next few months and that he doesn't want the eyes of the country on Washington.

There are however, many important policies being worked out in the various departments, some of which will be the subject of congressional investigation when congress reconvenes and the disinclination of the White House to have the spotlight center on the executive will of course, not prevent the three or four hundred scribes here from keeping their eyes and ears open and disclosing the interesting developments in Washington in the next few months.

Some of the news will of course be suppressed and made difficult to obtain, but this is always more or less the case under every administration.

Boyle Workman appears to have been elected in the fourth. R. S. Sparks and John Topham are nominated in the fifth district. Bert L. Farmer is leading in the sixth and E. E. Moore second. Ralph L. Criswell and Howard W. Davis are nominees from the seventh district.

Evan Lewis and Frank L. Shaw lead in the eighth district. In the ninth W. J. Sanborn and Thomas L. Dodge are leading. Additional returns may elect Sanborn.

In the tenth district Mary L. Pierce and Charles E. Downs are nominated, while Frederick C. Langdon and Pierson M. Hall will fight it out in the June elections from the eleventh. A. J. Barnes and E. J. McCully were nominated in the twelfth; Joseph L. Pedrotti and Joseph Fitzpatrick in the thirteenth; Edwin Baker and I. C. Ash in the fourteenth, the Eagle Rock district and Charles J. Colden and E. M. Remiller in the fifteenth.

Candidates for the mayoralty race made the following statements:

"The election has been won by Mayor Cryer," said Judge Bledsoe. "I have no post-mortems to make. I face the front and not to the rear."

Mrs. Shepherd Named In Chicago Murder

Billy McClintock by the administration of typhoid germs.

The state, it is believed, will make no serious effort to prevent her release on bond. In fact, the state's attorney's office evidenced almost complete indifference as to whether or not she was taken into custody.

Crowe Displeased

Robert Crowe, state's attorney, was still nursing his wrath which inspired his caustic comment on yesterday's developments in the case, and when asked concerning Mrs. Shepherd's detention, said sharply:

"I'm not the sheriff."

He made no effort to conceal the fact that he was highly displeased at the fact that Mrs. Shepherd had been drawn into the case at this time. His public statement after the coroner's jury's findings became known yesterday showed this.

Mrs. Shepherd Hurls Denunciation On Judge

CHICAGO, May 6.—In a state bordering on the hysterical, her face white with fear and anger, Mrs. Julie Shepherd paused in her flight from arrest to avoid spending the night in jail, just long enough to hurl bitter invective and denunciation upon the head of Judge Harry Olson, to whom she lays the blame for a recommendation by the coroner's jury that she be held as an accessory to the murder of Billy McClintock, for which her husband is now in jail, waiting trial, and of Billy's mother, Mrs. Emma Nelson Mc Clintock.

"If there is a God in Heaven, He will send a fitting punishment for this final exhibition of fiendishness on Judge Olson's part," she said.

"You have heard of men with a lust for blood. He has a lust for human agony. He is happy at the results of his plotting in this case. Wasn't it enough to satisfy him that my boy is dead and my husband is behind the bars? Why must he drag me from my home and throw me into jail too?

"I tell you when the truth is known I will not be slinking off to a dark corner to hide from my enemies. I will be borne on the shoulders of the people of this state. I have no fear—my faith in God is absolute. He will bear me up and make my enemies my footstool, as the Bible says."

More Men On Trail Of Two Escaped Convicts

stopped his stage as he rounded a curve near North Bloomfield in Nevada county, ousted him from his seat and then raced away in his car to spread terror through Nevada, Sierra and Placer counties, were the escaped murderers. Later, officers said, the men abandoned the machine in Long ravine, where they took across country, closely pursued.

At a point between Grass Valley and where the chase was so close, that merely by the prank of fate were the posses eluded. The machine in which the officers were chasing the bandits stalled and they were forced to abandon the man hunt until a new car was commandeered.

Along the winding road to Colfax, Tanko and Hall were reported to have assumed new tactics, coming into the open and passing through a series of small posses by boldly posing as man hunters themselves.

"Howdy boys," they were said to have shouted to their pursuers. "Seen Tanko and Hall? Well, we'll get 'em yet."

The trick worked and permitted the men to swing around Colfax.

Searching Trains

All trains passing near the district where the men were last seen are being thoroughly searched. A train conductor reported that an abandoned automobile had been sighted near Emigrant gulch, thirty miles beyond in the hills. If the car is proved the one stolen yesterday by the bandits, officers said, their escape was complete.

Early capture of the desperadoes, despite their lead on the posses, was predicted today. They are believed to be without food and suffering from the cold of the high mountain regions.

Any attempt on their part to obtain food, clothing or transportation at this time, with the whole country aroused, would lead to their immediate capture, posse leaders assert.

Colorado school and high school property on Colorado street.

Members of the association were unanimous in advocating the removal of the beacon traffic signals from the city streets. The signals were branded as advertising schemes.

The association is ready to assist the Adams street property owners with plans for widening the street.

In carrying out improvement plans for Colorado street, the association advocated sidewalks along the entire street.

JUNIOR DEBATERS BEAT SOPHOMORE

Horace Anderson Trophy At Stake When Broadway Students Contest

By BARBARA BLAKE
Written for The Evening News

Fighting for the Horace Anderson debating trophy and the championship of the school, the junior class team won a two to one decision over the sophomore class team in an assembly held yesterday in the Broadway High school auditorium, during the second period.

The junior team, composed of Jack Salyer, Radcliffe Clausen and Jerome Andrews, defended the negative side of: "Resolved, that the child labor amendment to our constitution should be ratified." The sophomore team consisted of Catherine Browne, Dorothy Irwin and Mary Scoles. The judges were Jennie Freeman, head of the English department; James Mussatti, instructor in civics, and Harold Brewster, dramatic coach.

Main Arguments

The main arguments of the junior team rested in the problem as to what would become of the children put out of work by this amendment, as there are not, in most of the states, compulsory education laws. They argued that each state should make its own child labor law, believing that otherwise state's rights would be interfered with. Also, the juniors claimed that the powers granted to Congress, in the amendment, are vague and would not meet the issue. The negative offered as a substitute, a compulsory education law.

Refuting the negative's argument, the sophomore team put forth the fact that it is not a question of state's rights but a question of the rights of humanity. The affirmative also advanced the argument that uniform control would be more successful than separate state control.

NEWS OF STAGE AND SCREEN

VIEWS AND PREVIEWS—NEWS NOTES FROM STUDIOS
Compiled By Members of The Glendale Evening News Staff

Comedy Star

HAROLD LLOYD is seen in "Why Worry" now showing on the screen of the Cosmo theatre on Brand boulevard. "Why Worry" is Harold's "best laugh."

Have you a motion picture mind? If not, cultivate one, for it's all you need to win success in the movies. There is nothing strange about a motion picture mind. It is merely the ability to think along the lines of the cinema—to be able to visualize your thoughts transplated to the screen. The average star does not need it, however, for they are called upon merely to transcribe to the silver-sheet what the author and director lays out for them.

Harold Lloyd, on the other hand, is the unusual exception. Lloyd has a "picture mind" in the highest form. He has to have it, in the first place he always works from original stories. And these stories invariably are developments of his own ideas.

Lloyd can tell instantaneously whether a gag can be successfully put into picture form and still retain the humor it had in story form. He is quick to grasp the possibilities of a piece of business, and his long forte is the development of "gags"—getting out of them all the opportunities they offer.

'Why Worry'

One can look over any Lloyd picture, and judge for himself whether the noted comedian makes the best possible use of his material. In comedy, a gag can be dropped either too soon or carried so far as to lose most of its appeal.

Watch "Why Worry," Harold's fun offering now at the Cosmo theatre, and you will see what is meant by "picture mind."

There are several reasons why Lloyd has never attempted to film a popular stage play or book, and all of them bear on the "picture mind" idea. One of the principal objections held by the comedian against plays and novels, of course, is the fact that he never could transfer them to the screen as they are written, and would thereby disappoint the hosts who helped make the play or book popular.

Gags Important

There is not one author in five thousand, perhaps, who can write "gags" that would look funny on the screen. This goes for our most famous fictionists, who have not "picture minds." There have been very few funny stage plays which have retained their humor in motion picture form. There have been several noticeable exceptions to this but very few indeed.

Mark Twain did not live in the picture age, but some of his stories have created the best and most successful comedies produced on the screen. "A Connecticut Yankee," for example, will always stand as one of the funniest contributions to the silent drama.

EDUCATION BOARD RETAINS OFFICES

Present Quarters Leased For Another Two Years At Business Meeting

The Board of Education will occupy its offices at 107½ South Brand boulevard for another two years, it was announced at a short meeting of the school board last night. John T. Cate, business manager of the city schools, announced that he has secured a lease for two years on the present quarters in the name of the Board of Education.

Funds totaling $12,500 were transferred from the kindergarten fund to the elementary school fund by action of the board last night. The transfer is to cover shortages in the elementary appropriations.

Leave of Absence

Leave of absence for a period of one year was granted Arthur N. Bennet, teacher at the Wilson Intermediate school. He will attend the University of California next term.

A ruling of the county Board of Education granting permission to city fire officials to inspect all school buildings, was read to the board by Superintendent Richardson D. White. Mrs. A. A. Barton, chairman, presided at the meeting.

PLAYERS' REPUTE SPREADING FAST

Mrs. Dobinson Gets Offers to Stage 'Manna' Elsewhere After L. A. Engagement

Appreciation of the Dobinson Players, judging by developments of the last few days, is surprisingly general in Southern California. As a consequence of several good offers, negotiations on which are now pending it is not at all certain that the Players will return to Glendale immediately after they finish their Philharmonic engagement in Los Angeles on May 23.

Florence Dobinson, organizer and manager of the company, is figuring with theatrical men who realize that the Dobinson name, augmented in brilliance by the months during which a very good stock company has been maintained at Glendale, is worth something substantial at the box office.

No less than three cities, all of them larger than Glendale, stand ready to take the Players and "Manna" for runs of from two weeks to eight, after the Philharmonic engagement.

"Of course it depends in some measure on what sort of an impression the play will make in the city," explained Mrs. Dobinson. "But that is a matter which is causing me little concern. We had many Los Angeles people out here to see the play and they were very much moved by it as well as pleased. I am sure that it will be a hit.

Offers Made

"The offers of the engagements come from both the north and the south. But there is so strong a movement here in Glendale to build us a home of our own that I feel our place is here, helping the men and women who are promoting that plan by our presence and by the continued production of plays. Thus we will continue to add to our following and reputation and will be an advertisement for their efforts.

"If, however, the offers are so attractive that it means a chance to recoup in a large way the losses we have sustained in Glendale, then it might be good business to accept some of them until such time as the new theatre is ready."

Performance Tonight

Insofar as the Dobinson Players were concerned the Playhouse was dark last night, as another attraction held the stage. The Players will resume their interrupted engagement tonight with the clever comedy drama that has won so many friends and which gives Doris Lyons so fine an opportunity—"The Wonderful Thing."

This play closes the engagement which has lasted since October first, on Saturday, with matinee and evening performance.

Whether or not the Playhouse will be reopened again Monday, May 25, as Mrs. Dobinson hopes, with a new comedy, depends on developments of the next few days.

'FRECKLES' BERRY STAR AT GATEWAY

'Printer's Devil' Tells Fish Story In Connection With Picture

You can believe this one or not, just as you please; but Wesley (Freckles) Barry declares it's the honest truth, and is willing to look you straight in the eye as he tells it.

During the filming of his latest starring picture, "The Printer's Devil," he obtained leave to take a half day off and go fishing, his favorite sport next to the radio. He claims that after he fished two hours he caught a dog-fish and a cat-fish, then brought them home and turned them loose in the yard.

The dog-fish, "Wes" says, met and killed his neighbor's St. Bernard, then went mad and ran down the street barking furiously till a traffic cop ended its days.

"Printer's Devil"

The cat-fish, "Wes" says, met an untimely end by vocalizing to the moon, shoes and tin pans that fell from the sky proving fatal.

In "The Printer's Devil," "Wes" does almost as ridiculous things, though they don't strain the credulity and fancy so much as these dog and fish stories. "Wes" cavorts, fights, holds up holdup men, gets the goat of metal-chewing goats, and does his "durnest" to further the romance of his boss—the impecunious owner of a country newspaper.

It is a Warner Brothers' classic of the screen, showing today only at the Gateway theatre, together with the usual Wednesday vaudeville feature.

Girl Mother Glad She Killed Father Of Babe

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 6.—"Sorry I killed John Bagnano? I am glad of it. He would not clothe my baby."

So declared Olympia Macri, 18, to police immediately after the killing, Sergeant John J. Schmidt testified at the girl's murder trial.

Gaiety Girl

MARY PHILBIN In adaptation of novel, "The Inheritors," to open today for two days at Glendale theatre.

"The Gaiety Girl," Mary Philbin's spectacular new starring vehicle, a Universal-Jewell adaptation of I. A. R. Wylie's novel "The Inheritors," opens for two days this afternoon at the Glendale theatre. The new picture, the first in which Miss Philbin appears in the modern garb of a girl of today, follows her sensational successes in "Merry Go Round" and the "Fool's Highway," in one of which she appeared as a Viennese girl and in the other as a waif of New York's old Bowery.

The new picture is a story of an aristocratic English girl, forced by circumstances on the stage, tricked into an odious marriage, and delivered from her predicament by one of the strangest tricks of fate ever seen on the screen. The gay night life of London, the hectic revelry of the Gaiety girls and other spectacular embellishments mark the action of the story.

Excellent Cast

A strong cast supports Miss Philbin. Joseph J. Dowling, who played the title role in "The Miracle Man" appears as her stern grandfather, descendant of a race of kings. King Baggot, formerly a star and now one of the best-known directors in Hollywood, made the picture. Baggot starred in the first "big feature" ever made, the spectacular production of "Ivanhoe" made in England, and much of the scenic data he obtained at that time was woven into the reproduction of a famous old castle on the British coast, used in the new film.

The shower of gifts was a complete surprise, being presented to her during the playing of a game, while she was blindfolded. Fifty women attended the tea and after a pleasant afternoon of games and songs, refreshments were served.

ARMY AIRMEN BLAZE TRAIL ON DESERT

Lieutenants Arrive Rockwell Field, Completing Survey From San Antonio

By BEN BAINES
For International News Service

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 6.—Lieutenants Harry Weddington and Reuben D. Biggs, air service, arrived at Rockwell field today after completing an overland trip from San Antonio, Tex., establishing emergency landing fields for airplanes ever twenty-five miles en route.

With the arrival of Lieutenants Weddington and Biggs the United States army once more registered as a pioneer in the development of the nation's systems of transportation and communication. Just as army engineers built the first railroads of the country and the army signal corps laid the first cables, so has the army air service pioneered an air highway across half the continent.

Most Complete Airway

The airway just completed is known as the southern section of the trans-continental airway, and is now the most completely marked airway in the country. With a field every twenty-five miles, Lieutenant Weddington said, it now is safe for any ship that can stay in the air for five minutes to fly over any part of it. From any point on the airway a pilot with average altitude will be able to glide to safety.

The emergency landing field party left San Antonio March 25, five weeks being necessary to complete its project. Approximately forty emergency fields were established.

Hardships Met

As in all pioneering projects, there were hardships to meet. Most of the fields selected required grubbing. There was no appropriation for labor, so, with the assistance of one enlisted man and one newspaperman, the officers worked in the field and mixed their own lime for marking the field.

They slept in barns and in the open. They observed no working hours.

Desert Field Laid

They established a field at the north entrance of Apache pass, in Arizona, the one-time stronghold of the Apache Indian, and in the middle of the desert at Gray's Well. This field will be a bright spot in the desert for any pilot who happens to land there, as E. P. Hunt, "Peg," custodian of the field, will have a yarn that will bring laughs from the most weary flyer. "Peg" is making arrangements to place signal lights on his house for ships that might come over the desert at night. The field then will be the only emergency field along the route with night signals.

The army now has a permanent base along this airway every 250 miles, with the exception of the stretch between Tucson, Ariz., and San Diego. Negotiations now are under way to place a permanent base at Yuma, Ariz.

OIL OPERATOR SENTENCED ON FRAUD

Campbell, Jointly Indicted With Wheeler, Guilty Of Using Mails

GREAT FALLS, Mont., May 6.—Gordon Campbell, Montana oil operator, was found guilty today on one count of an indictment charging him with fraudulent use of the mails in promotion of the Campbell-Kevin oil syndicate.

Campbell was sentenced to two years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth and fined $1000. The count on which he was found guilty charged him with using monies paid by the shareholders of the oil syndicate for advertising purposes without the right to do so.

Notice of appeal was filed by attorneys for Campbell and his bond will be arranged late this afternoon.

A jury that had deliberated for thirty hours reached a sealed verdict late last night and was read in Federal Judge George M. Bourquin's court today.

Campbell si under indictment in Washington with United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, in connection with Montana oil and gas permits said to have been secured from the department of the interior.

TONOPAH, Nev., May 6.—George Montgomery, veteran prospector, passed through Tonopah recently en route to the Kawich range in search of a tourmaline mine he discovered twenty years ago and "lost."

Since then Montgomery found the Johnnie mine in the desert, which he sold to the Mormon church for $25,000 and then realized an additional $25,000 from the sale of the Worldbeater gold mine in the Panamint mountains.

Montgomery belongs to a prospecting family. He is a brother of Robert Montgomery, who discovered the Montgomery-Shoshone mine that resulted in the founding of Rhyolite.

TREE, 1000 YEARS OLD, CHAMPIONED

Great Cypress That Shaded Washington Is Saved From Destruction

NEW BERN, N. C., May 6.—The Great Cypress of New Bern, 1000 years old, the tree which sheltered George Washington and General Nathaniel Greene, has been saved from destruction.

It is a wonderful specimen of the cypress, apart from its historic interest. Its circumference at the base is more than seventeen feet, and the greatest extension of its limbs is 100 feet. Tree surgeons found that ants had bored their way through the decayed heart of the cypress. The decayed part was removed, and cavity sterilized and filling and braces applied.

Among historic trees of America the Great Cypress ranks with the Charter Oak and the Washington Elm. It was under this tree, in 1781, that General Nathaniel Greene met Governor Richard D. Spaight, of North Carolina, who pledged his own personal means and that of the state to the Continental army. His act is believed to have turned the tide.

Washington, during his first administration, was a visitor in New Bern and made several pilgrimages to the Great Cypress. The tree was well known in colonial days. An important treaty with the Indains was signed at its foot.

Plans for the attendance of over 200 Glendale realtors and their wives at the annual convention of the California Real Estate association at Fresno during October, were laid at the meeting of the Glendale Realty board today noon at the Egyptian Village cafe. An effort to get the Glendale Drum and Bugle corps to accompany the realtors to Fresno will be made. A special committee to arrange for the Glendale delegation at the convention will be appointed shortly by President William L. Twining, who presided at the meeting today.

In order to cement the spirit of friendship already existing between the Glendale and Pasadena Realty boards it is proposed to hold a joint picnic between members of the sister boards at the time of the Glendale realtors' jinks to be held early in September. Charles B. Guthrie will cooperate with a special jinks day committee headed by William L. Truitt, in arranging for this affair.

The Glendale Realty board today officially recognized the work of one of its members, Lloyd H. Wilson, in the promotion of the industrial growth of Glendale. James M. Pearson, realtor, called attention to the work of Mr. Wilson in the industrial belt in a short address.

Provides Plants

In response, Mr. Wilson said he was accomplishing single handedly what Glendale bankers and civic organizations refused to undertake when he approached them several years ago—the furnishing of plants for industrial concerns to occupy when they do come to Glendale.

"Industries will come if sufficient housing facilities are provided," he said. "I have built twenty-two industrial buildings, and all of them are occupied. Five more are now under construction."

Committee reports were given by J. F. McClish, Peter Hanson, J. M. Boland, Max Woods, E. P. Hayward, W. L. Truitt, J. M. Pearson, Miss Anna C. Venneman, William P. Hope, L. H. Myers, R. M. Stryker, O. M. Newby, E. M. Ingledue and Mary Carpenter.

Names Committees

W. L. Truitt was appointed chairman of the entertainment committee, following the resignation of Jack Galvin from that position. George D. McDill and S. S. Gilhuly were appointed to the taxation and legislation committee to serve with Mr. Pearson, chairman.

The Glendale board will actively compete for the silver attendance trophy offered to the real estate board in California with the best attendance record. The cup is offered by Peter Hanson, past president of the Glendale board. A committee on attendance will be Arthur Campbell, Mabel Tight and W. E. Mercer.

W. L. Truitt and William A. Horn were appointed on a committee to arrange for Glendale's participation in the annual picnic of the Pomona Realty board, to be held at Pomona on May 16.

WOOL OFFERINGS

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho, May 6.—The majority of the wool offerings here were withdrawn by growers, owing to dissatisfaction with the bids offered. Sales of small lots of eastern Washington wool have been reported at 32 to 35 cents a pound for medium and 34 to 36 cents for fine grades.

Boston now receives about two-thirds of the wool imported into the United States.

Furnished Exclusively to The Glendale Evening News

CHICAGO, May 6.—At a meeting of those interested in the preservation and restoration of the remaining World's Fair buildings in Jackson Park, held here recently, a committee, headed by Judge Oscar Hebel, was named to confer with the park commissioners. Lorado Taft, noted sculptor, addressed the meeting and said that the recently damaged German building was "one of the most picturesque structures in the middle west."

The audiphone, the smallest practicable telephone receiver in the world, according to electrical experts, is to be manufactured in Chicago.

The audiphone is described as being small enough to fit in the "porches of the ear" and is designed especially for persons partly deaf. The outfit comprises two microphones, an amplifier containing two tiny vacuum tubes and the necessary batteries, in addition to a pair of receivers, which are about the size of the end of one's thumb.

While the audiphone was developed as a telephone accessory, it also makes conversation for a person 50 per cent deaf almost perfect, experts claim.

Incidentally, no headband is needed. The cartilages of the outer ear are so rigid that when an impression is taken and a moulded fitting made, the audiphone receivers can be worn without discomfort.

Wearing of one's old party dresses to the office is soon to be discontinued, if the Women's Division of the National Amateur Athletic Federation of America has anything to say about it. Instead, stenographers will go to work in sports clothes, ready for the daily athletic tilt after work.

Heads of the various physical education organizations of the country, meeting here recently, brushed aside the glamour surrounding the Venus-like girl and put a ban on fancy dress for office wear.

Just because a girl has the outlines of the Greek goddess of beauty, it does not necessarily follow that she is wealthy and has the possibilities of a good wife and mother, they argued. She may be nothing more than a decoration, while her less physically perfect sister can wield a wicked tennis racquet and bring up a robust family.

They discouraged the stress laid on the education of the few who are athletically inclined to the exclusion of those who swim, jump and run in the ordinary fashion.

Physical education for all girls, is to be their slogan.

"We're not out to make women boyish," said Miss Elizabeth Halsey, Professor of Physical Education at the University of Iowa and Publicity Director of the National Federation. "We don't want to make girls' athletics merely a copy of what has been developed for boys; neither are we out to make stars or encourage competition. Athletics should become popular—a recreation for the tired business woman as well as the tired business man.

"University records show that the athletic girl today is taller than were the girls of former times, and, of course, she is much healthier.

"To be well built, a girl should be neither over weight nor under weight. Often, however, a stout girl is a remarkably fine athlete."

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S STRAWBERRY CAKE

One day as Uncle Wiggily was hopping back home to his hollow stump bungalow, having been in the woods looking for an adventure, the rabbit gentleman saw something red gleaming amid the green leaves on the side of a hill, where the wind blew from the south and the warm sun shone down.

"I wonder what that red color is?" said Uncle Wiggily to himself. "It can't be my pink nose, for I have that on me. It can't be my new red vest which the robin birds made with feathers from their breasts, for my vest is at home. I'll take a look."

And when he had looked on the warm, sunny hillside, the bunny saw a number of red strawberries growing amid the long, trailing vines.

"Oh, ho! The first early strawberries!" cried Uncle Wiggily, dancing for joy. "I'll go home and tell Mrs. Wiggily about them, and she will make me a strawberry shortcake. But, no—stop—on account of so many new little children bunnies I guess she had better make a strawberry LONG cake!" laughed the rabbit gentleman.

Taking another look at the red berries, Mr. Longears hopped quickly home to his bungalow. Even before he reached there the little boy and girl rabbits, Nipper, Skipper, Jingle, Jangle, Tangle, Scooter, Tooter, Weezie and Wizzie ran to meet their new daddy, for they loved him.

"Come and play with us!" they called. "Not now, my dears." said Mr. Longears kindly." I have something to tell your mother," and into the bungalow he hurried.

"Will you make a strawberry shortcake, my dear?" he asked Mrs. Wiggily. "Or, I should say, a long cake!" he corrected, "so there will be plenty for the little bunnies. Will you make a strawberry cake?"

"If you get the berries," his wife answered. "I'll have Nurse Jane to help me make the cake."

"I know where the strawberries grow!" cried the bunny gentleman. "I'll take all the little bunnies with me and they'll help me pick them. We'll bring them home to you and then hurray for the cake!"

Uncle Wiggily carried a basket and the forty-'leven little bunny boys and girls followed their new daddy to the warm, sunny hillside, where he had seen the red berries gleaming amid the green vines.

"I'm going to run on ahead and pick the first berries!" cried Scooter.

"I'll get there before you do!" shouted Tooter.

Away ran the two jolly rabbit boys, followed by their brothers and sisters. But Tooter and Scooter had no sooner reached the place where the berries grew, than back they came running to Uncle Wiggily.

"We can't pick the berries!" they said.

"Why not?" asked their new daddy.

"Because," they said, "the vines are jumping about and leaping from side to side and the berries won't keep still long enough for us to pick them. Come and see!"

Uncle Wiggily and the other bunnies hurried to look and, surely enough, the strawberry vines were leaping about in a strange fashion.

"Ha! I see what the matter is!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "These are WILD strawberries and they are just acting a bit wild and cutting up for fun. They're wild berries; that's all."

"How can we tame them so we can pick them?" asked Scooter, making a reach for a big berry which snapped away from him.

"Hum! Wild strawberries!" mused Uncle Wiggily. "Let me think! It is said if you sprinkle salt on a wild bird's tail you can tame him. I hardly believe that. But perhaps if we sprinkle powdered sugar on wild strawberries it will tame them. I'll try it!"

Hopping to his bungalow, Uncle Wiggily got some powdered sugar. And as soon as he and the little bunnies sprinkled this sweet stuff on the wild strawberries they grew tame and quiet at once and allowed themselves to be picked and put in the basket.

Then Mrs. Wiggily and Nurse Jane made a fine, big strawberry long cake, and it was soon eaten up by the many little bunnies and their new daddy. So it all happened for the best, you see, and if the clothes horse will kindly let the poll parrot pick an umbrella off the rubber plant, next you shall hear about Uncle Wiggily and Tooter's toot.

Diet and Health

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Abscessed Teeth

"Dear Doctor: A tooth or two in my upper gum sometimes draws matter, especially when my bodily resistance is at low ebb. Some persons, doctors and others, have advised me to have them pulled, saying that they would throw poisons into my system. I feel, however, that I need all my teeth for mastication and hate very much to have any of them pulled. Besides I have had no toothache in any of them for years.

"Some doctors argue that pyorrhea permanently poisons the system, but my opinion has been that any posion that does collect is eliminated by the white corpuscles and other means and that tooth-pulling for prevention of infection is about as harmful as it is helpful. What is your advice on this matter?—L. K."

It is possible that you could have your teeth treated so that you would not have to have them taken out, but usually teeth that have pus clear to the roots have to come out.

The doctors and friends who have advised you that pyorrhea and root abscesses permanently poison the system are absolutely right. You have a chronic source of infection which may settle in your joints or your heart at any time. There is no doubt that when it was first found that chronically decayed teeth and pyorrhea and root abscesses could cause infections in the body, teeth that might possibly have been saved were sacrificed, but more good than harm has come from the process.

Nice clean false teeth are far preferable to your own teeth if they are infected.

This makes me think of a little story. A little boy was asked how many sets of teeth a person has. He replied: "Three: Temporary, permanent and false." (He must have been the well known Boston Boy.)

Must Have the Foundation

Mrs. F.—Your husband who weighed 245 but has lost 55 pounds, at 190 is still 30 pounds too heavy for his height of five feet, eight inches.

It is very important while reducing, especially where there is considerable to lose, to have the needed vitamins and mineral elements and protein; otherwise the system will suffer. The only things that can be cut down on are the energy foods — fats, starches and sugars. It is wise to have the following foundation diet each day: one pound of vegetables, especially green leaf vegetables; one pound of fruit; two glasses of skim or buttermilk, or two to three ounces of cottage cheese; two to three ounces of lean meat or nuts, or two eggs; one or two slices of whole wheat bread or one or two potatoes. These come to about 900 calories. That will give 300 more for choice.

Exercises and Inflammations

Mrs. R.—You would have to be guided by what your physician said as to whether you can take abdominal exercises when you have a chronic inflammation in the pelvis. You certainly couldn't take them with an acute inflammation.

In some cases of chronic conditions, exercises, if they are begun very gradually and increased very gradually, will improve the condition. However, you must have an expert examination and personal advice from your physician to be sure not to cause a flare-up.

Mrs. G.—Yes, we have a little pamphlet on the Hair, which takes up the care of the scalp, dandruff, baldness and grey hair. When you send for this don't forget to enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Mr. X.—Our article on High blood pressure will interest you. See answer to Mrs. G. above.

Tomorrow—Answers To Correspondents.

My Dear Followers:—When sending for material which we offer you please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible; if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s.a.s.e., if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

In summer, when the butterfish, bluefish, mackerel and shad arrive, we are inclined to forget the cod, which is with us the year round. But cod is less expensive in summer than in winter and the economical housewife will want to try some of the following recipes:

Cod, Southern Style: Wash, skin and bone two medium-size cod "steaks" and place them in a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle them generously with salt, pepper, chopped parsley and lemon juice, then cover them with a batter made by mixing together two beaten eggs, one cup of sweet cold milk, two teaspoonfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a pinch of pepper. (Do not cook this batter). Sprinkle a thin layer of fine-chopped mild American cheese over the batter, and slip the dish into a moderate oven and bake for 35 minutes. Serve hot.

Savory Cod: Buy two pounds of sliced fresh cod. Place the fish, with bones and skin removed, in the bottom of a baking pan and sprinkle with two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice, one teaspoon of salt and a little pepper, then add a layer consisting of two large, raw, peeled onions chopped and mixed with one minced, green, sweet pepper (seeds discarded). Top all with buttered crumbs, pour two cups of hot water into the pan around the fish, and bake in a moderate oven until the fish is tender and the crumbs brown (about 40 minutes if the fish slices are about one inch thick). Serve hot.

Boiled Cod Supreme: Buy one pound of cod steak. Bone, skin and cut in quarters; tie this up in clean cheesecloth with three large peeled and sliced raw onions, then lower the bag into a sauce pan filled with boiling water, to cook till the fish and onions are tender (at least one hour). Serve very hot on a platter, mixed with pared freshly-boiled potatoes, and a white sauce covering all.

Fried Cod with Tomatoes: Clean cod steaks, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and dip into coarse cornmeal. Fry them in a frying pan in any good drippings, surrounded by one can of tomatoes. Serve cod and tomatoes together, seasoned to taste with salt and pepper.

Breaded Cod: These are cod steaks seasoned and dipped into dry bread crumbs, in egg, and again in crumbs, then friend five minutes in deep, hot fat till a golden brown.

Chats On Beauty

By EDNA KENT FORBES

Fortunately for the thin woman, the flat boyish figure continues to be fashionable. Dresses still made to bind tightly around slim hips, skirts are cut almost to the knees, a style that is ridiculous with fat legs but rather becoming with slender ones, and attractive unless of course you have scruples about showing any part of the leg above the ankle bone.

These dresses which seem not to fit are very tricky, for the whole art lies in making them apparently shapeless but really very well shaped indeed. It is the same way with the apparently shapeless figure of present day fashion. It must be slim yet firmly modeled, and must give an impression of health and strength. It must be held straight, yet seem relaxed and even rather indolent. There must be no gawky lines, no hollow shoulders or thin arms, nothing, in fact, to spoil one's feeling of beauty.

The way to have such a figure and to keep it is to exercise. Regularly, night and morning, stand in your room in any sort of loose attire that gives you perfect physical freedom and practise the following exercises. With the hands over the head and the knees, and hips rigid, bend over to touch the floor with the finger tips and finally with the palms of the hands. With the hands on the hips and the lower part of the body rigid, bend from the waist forward, backward, to each side, and finally revolve the whole upper part of the body with the waist as a pivot.

These exercises are for hips, abdomen, back and legs. For shoulders and arms try deep breathing exercises, holding the arms straight out in front, and as you breathe in drawing the hands back to the shoulders with clenched fists as though pulling a heavy weight. You will feel the effect of this down the back as well as around the chest.

Dustie:—I do not think that you are too stout to weigh 155 pounds with a height of five feet, nine inches. Continue with the yeast for a longer time, and if the pimples do not heal up, try dusting them with flour of sulphur every night, as they may be reinfecting themselves. You could also stop eating lunch before retiring and see if that helps you clear up the condition.

Only exercise will keep you young

Joan:—Massage your ankles to reduce the fat over them, as that will be more effective than using an astringent soap.

Tomorrow—Can You Wear Black?

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Morning Wedding

St. Stephen's Episcopal church, Hollywood, was the setting this morning, Wednesday, May 6, 1925, at 11:30 o'clock for the wedding of Miss Ella Constance Fowler of 1826 Garfield place, Hollywood, and John Henry Richardson of 317 North Brand boulevard, Glendale. Rev. Philip A. Easley, rector of the church performed the Episcopalian ring service in the presence of several hundred relatives and friends from various Southern California cities. Palms and white wicker baskets of spring flowers joined by bows of white tulle were used to form an aisle for the bridal party. Ferns and baskets of flowers in shades of pink and white were added decorative features.

Preceding the ceremony Leonard Van Berg sang "Oh, Perfect Love," with William Ballard as accompanist. As the strains of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin were played by Mr. Ballard the bridal party entered the church, marching slowly down to the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Morris W. Fowler. She wore a creme ecru lace dress over shell pink crepe, with a large pink picture hat and white fox fur. She carried a bride's shower of white bride's roses, lilies-of-the-valley and fern.

Miss Muriel Fowler attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a creme embroidery dress and blue picture hat. Her bouquet was a shower of sweetpeas and Elegance roses. Paul E. Richardson, brother of Mr. Richardson served as best man. Ushers were relatives and school friends of Mr. Richardson, including Burt Richardson, his brother, William Goertz, Sam Neel, Everett Richardson, his cousin, William Gibson and Dan Campbell, Jr.

After the ceremony at the church a wedding breakfast was served at the Fowler home in Garfield place, Hollywood, for a company including Mr. and Mrs. John H. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Morris W. Fowler, Mrs. Ella Richardson, mother of Mr. Richardson; Mrs. Ella C. Chambers, grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. E. Will Richardson, the former a brother of Mr. Richardson; Mr. and Mrs. Shives Mitchell, the latter a sister of Mr. Richardson; Miss Muriel Fowler, sister of the bride; Paul E. Richardson and Burt Richardson, brothers of Mr. Richardson; and Rev. Philip A. Easley.

Pink and white flowers and white candles were used to decorate the breakfast table. The wedding gifts were on display and included silver, linens, cut glass, pictures and a chimes clock.

Following the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Richardson left by motor for San Francisco, where they will board the steamship President Polk for Honolulu for a six weeks' honeymoon trip. On their return they will make their home at 112-A West Dryden street, Glendale.

Mrs. Richardson is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fowler, and is a well-known member of the younger set of Hollywood. She graduated from Hollywood High school, later attending Mills college, Oakland. She has been a junior at University of California, southern branch. She is a member of Chi Omega sorority. Many pre-nuptial showers and teas have been given for her in the past few weeks.

Mr. Richardson is the youngest son of Mrs. Ella W. Richardson of 317 North Brand boulevard, and the late E. W. Richardson, well-known Glendale residents. He is a native of Glendale, where he has made his home, graduating from the local grammar and high schools and later attending University of Virginia. He is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity. His grandfather, the late W. C. B. Richardson, who came to California in 1868, was owner of the Santa Eulalia ranch, comprising 500 acres of land. His father and mother both came to California in 1872, the former coming from Ohio and the latter from Illinois.

DEMPSEY LEAVES ON TRIP ABROAD

Learns Kearns Will Not Be Given License Until Wills' Defi Met

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Jack Dempsey, surrounded by friends just before sailing for Europe today on the Berengaria, declared that nothing, except the lack of a suitable offer, could or would stop him from defending his title before the end of the impending outdoor season.

The champion made this statement after being informed that the New York State Athletic commission believes it has discovered a weapon whereby it expects to force him into the ring against Harry Wills. The weapon, according to the commission, means:

Dempsey will meet Wills as demanded, or Jack Kearns will not be allowed to manage Mickey Walker during his big "shots" in New York.

Dempsey's Willing

"That's all right, only there will be no forcing necessary with me," Dempsey said, smiling. "I've said I'm willing to fight Wills and I mean it. I want to fight; it is my business and means a large part of my income. I am not even interested in what this weapon may be. My main interest now is to enjoy myself in Europe and to get myself ready for a fight when I return."

The weapon referred to is merely this: Kearns as manager of Dempsey has neglected to accept Wills' challenge; Kearns as manager for Walker, will shortly apply for a license here if he expects to handle Mickey and the manager's cut during the fight with Harry Greb at the Polo grounds on June 19.

The commission will play one factor against the other and deny Kearns a license to manage Walker until he accepts the Wills defi as manager of Dempsey. In brief, it begins to look as though the inevitable showdown on the Dempsey-Wills controversy is beginning to materialize. It is a showdown that seems likely to find Kearns holding a pair of deuces against a pat full.

None Too Rosy

He cannot afford to let the Walker "shots" get away from him and unless Mickey is a very gracious young man, he won't pay Kearns for activities in which the latter has no part.

Another thing: Walker, for purposes of the future, is more valuable to Kearns than Dempsey is. The latter is good for one or two bouts, if that, while Walker has his career before him.

It would be a depressing denouement for Kearns to pull a managerial tendon right at the start of his business relations with the welterweight champion. It is not likely that Kearns will permit this to happen, even if it means the reluctant acceptance of a challenge for which Kearns appears to have no kindly regard.

MICKEY IN FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6.—Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, accompanied by his new manager, Jack Kearns, arrived here today from Los Angeles and entered active training for his ten-round bout in San Francisco May 16 against Lefty Cooper, California star. Walker, it was reported today, will receive $30,000 for his appearance.

MISS COLLETT WINS

ST. ANNES, Eng., May 6.—Glenna Collett, American golf star, added another victory to her golfing invasion of England today when with Mrs. Allan MacBeth, she defeated Mrs. T. H. Miller and Mrs. E. S. Catlew, three up and one to play in the second round of a woman's foursome tournament.

LAWRENCE PERRY SAYS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Already it is clear that intercollegiate rowing this season will be marked by several crews of extraordinary class.

Washington's defeat of California by a wide margin did more than offer a suggestion that the Huskies would come to Poughkeepsie this summer with an eight up to the Seattle standard. Their showing was a definite promise that the east will see a great deal of ability.

From what the writer saw of the Navy crew at Princeton on Saturday, Washington will need everything if she is to win—and that may not be enough.

The midshipmen are a powerful bunch and they keep their oars in the water longer, and finish farther back than any Annapolis outfit that has swung sweeps in not a few seasons. Right now the crew is well together and as the weeks go on, it shoud make a decidedly formidable long distance combination.

Edward Leader's genius has once more been demonstrated in the Yale eight. Here is a boatload of men who are just an average set of sweep swingers as to build.

Yet with his eagle eye for details, his ability to snap men together and have them put every pound of their strength into their stroke he has organized an eight composed mainly of new material which is likely to stand comparison with the Eli ship of 1924.

So at present, Washington, the Navy and Yale stand as candidates on their showing to date for very high honors.

Harvard has yet to row in a regatta but this may be said right now, the crew is going to be a better Harvard combination than has represented the Crimson in a long time.

Pennsylvania, like Princeton, needs driving force. There is no criticism to be made on the eight in-board or out-board, and it is not at all unreasonable to expect that in days to come the driving power will appear.

XVIII—More About Milk

Milk is more effective when slightly warmed. It should be warmed in the bottle by setting the bottle in a pan of cold water and allow the water to warm gradually, until about the temperature of the body, which is normally 98.6 degrees. Never boil milk for drinking purposes as boiling changes the composition and action of all things and therefore of milk too.

Raw milk is easier digested than boiled milk. Raw milk should always be used in place of pasteurized milk. When using pasteurized milk it is advisable to eat a baked or raw apple, or four or five soaked prunes during the day, anytime just before or after taking the milk. At no time should milk be diluted with water, as milk has sufficieut water, it will more or less destroy the intricate mixture of water, albumen and fat which is insoluble under ordinary conditions.

Skim milk is easier handled and digested than whole milk, and skim milk contains plenty of fat for our physiological needs. In cases where a thin person wishes to gain weight better results will be obtained when whole milk is used providing the digestive organs of said person will handle it, if not they must use skim milk to start with until they feel better and the digestive organs are strengthened enough to digest the whole milk.

It is possible to gain or lose weight on a strict milk diet. The persons who wish to reduce can do so by eliminating all other foods from their diet and using nothing but milk. The amount will be from two to three quarts per day of skim milk.

If whole milk is used, from one to two glasses three times per day will bring results, but the two or three quarts of skim milk per day will better nourish the body and keep the strenght up. Take the skim milk three times per day in equal proportions, one quart at each meal. No other food is necessary and must not be taken.

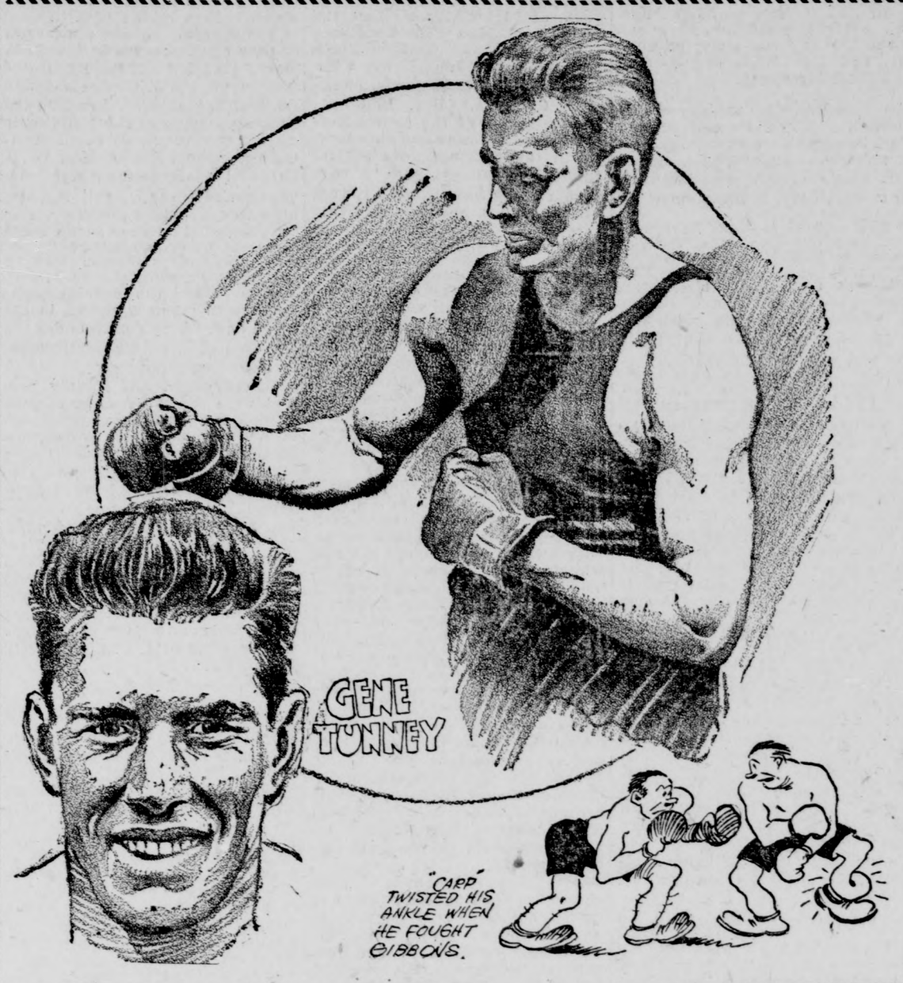
Has Big Chance Coming Up

GENE TUNNEY, who meets Tommy Gibbons on June 5, will have an opportunity to look a little closer at Jack Dempsey's dust-covered crown, provided Gene socks Gibbons for a couple of St. Paul cobblestones, with a well-paved street thrown in for good measure.



By NORMAN E. BROWN
Written for The Evening News

Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion and boasting all the gold braid, honorary degrees and emoluments that go with that tin headgear, now looms up in fistic circles like a new green roadster on the boulevard.

For Tunney holds in his good right, and short kicking left the power to knock the heavyweight fighting division into a chaotic state and come out as dictator of a new ring government, so to speak.

Tunney has been signed, body, soul and water bucket to meet Tommy Gibbons, chief contender for Jack Dempsey's crown, in a battle in New York City, June 5.

What's a Mere Title

While the battle will be literally one of light heavyweights with the American light heavyweight championship at stake this part of it is of minor importance. To both men the contest looms up mainly as one that may have a direct bearing on the heavyweight championship.

This is interesting in view of the fact that in the past months of gum-chewing and wrangling as to who should have the chance at Mr. Dempsey's dust-covered crown, Tunney's name has been mentioned but casually in most quarters.

He Humbled Carpentier

This despite the fact that Tunney is one of two men who has licked Georges Carpentier — the man who met Jack Dempsey in "the battle of the century" and the man who came closest, up to the Firpo battle, of knocking Mr. Dempsey's crown off his curly hair.

Some one seems to have thought of that but recently. The Gibbons-Tunney bout is the outcome of that brilliant thought.

You'll recall that Carpentier came to this country a year ago in an effort to get another fight with Dempsey. In the hope that he could prove his right to another battle Carpentier met Tommy Gibbons and Tunney. Gibbons defeated the French star when Carpentier apparently hurt his ankle. The visitor was "out" on his feet when the fight ended.

Won Back Title

Tunney then proceeded to give Carp as nifty a lacing as Gibbons did. Most critics were surprised at Tunney's showing. He had never met a man as flashy, cunning or clever as Carpentier. Despite this the young American war veteran handled himself calmly and with real ring generalship.

Tunney also has another good argument in his favor when it comes to comparing him with Gibbons and the other "logical contenders."

After losing the American light heavyweight title to Harry Greb a couple of years ago Tunney won the title back from him and in a third bout proved that the second victory wasn't a fluke. You'll recall what a terrible time Thomas St. Paul Gibbons had with Mr. Greb. Harry wouldn't fight according to the rules, Tom said.

Now if Tunney up and smacks Mr. Gibbons on the rule book or just above it where will Mr. Tunney be placed in the heavyweight rankings? No chance of placing him lower than No. 1. And Tom Gibbons' claims to the first opportunity to sock the married Mr. Dempsey can be thrown in the waste basket.

So the world lies before Mr. Tunney. Go on, Gene, take a hunk of it.

JOHN B. FOSTER'S VIEWS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Two irreconcilable factions hold the stock of the Brooklyn baseball club since the sudden deaths of the two presidents of the club within twelve days of each other.

One-half of the club is owned by the Ebbets family and the other half by the McKeever families, and while both sides profess to be willing to buy out the interests of the other, each announced that it will not sell its stock, but will continue in baseball.

When Charles H. Ebbets took the McKeevers into the organization he did so for their financial aid and because of their prominence in Brooklyn politics. They would not agree to any terms that would not eventually give them the same interest in the club as was held by Ebbets, which resulted in each of the factions owning 50 per cent of the stock. Of the McKeever interest each brother owned 25 per cent, but both voted in harmony as against the Ebbets interests whenever there happened to arise any disagreement.

In recent years the Ebbets faction and the McKeevers have not always agreed, although under the arrangement by which the partners worked it did not materially affect the conduct of the club, since to Ebbets had been entrusted the executive management with which the McKeevers were less familiar,

Ebbets wished to purchase the McKeever holdings or some part of them in the later years of his life, but the McKeever brothers were so certain they had a "gold mine" that they declined to sell.

Since the death of President Ebbets there has been held a meeting of his heirs at which it has been agreed that they will not sell their stock, and under no consideration will they dispose of any part of it to anyone connected with the McKeever faction.

The unexpected death of Edward McKeever, who succeeded to the presidency of the club after Ebbets passed on, has created a new situation which has interested the controlling powers of baseball. His widow may be bound by his will not to dispose of the stock unless Stephen McKeever, who now claims to be the active president of the club, shall sell his also. It is not thought the widow of Edward McKeever is over anxious to remain in baseball if she can get out at a price that will amply reward the original investment.

The Ebbets family are bitterly incensed against Stephen McKeever and will not listen to anything which shall appear to give him control of the club in any way.

Under no circumstances will they agree to anything which will submerge the club's identity as an Ebbets creation. The Ebbets heirs wish the family name to be perpetuated in connection with baseball in Brooklyn insisting that their father gave his life to it and built it up.

The National league, which must deal primarily with the situation, is not likely to make any move until after the wills are read, although some arrangement may have to be made to bring about an established policy in Brooklyn very shortly, as it would create havoc in the business affairs of the league if the Brooklyn owners continued at loggerheads.

It is well known that certain interests in New York are willing to purchase the club if they can get the Ebbets stock and the McKeever stock at a fair figure. But they will not purchase the stock of one faction and permit the other faction to hold its present block of 50 per cent of the club's paper.

San Francisco Fighter Gets Decision Over O'Donnell In Vernon Ring

Jack Silver won the right to meet Ace Hudkins, Pacific coast lightweight champion, on May 19, when the San Francisco fighter took the decision from Johnny O'Donnell at Vernon last night. O'Donnell put up a great battle, but started too late, Silyer having piled up a tremendous lead in the first six rounds.

Ernie Goozeman and Eddie Macy almost stole the show with ten rounds of fast milling in the semi-windup. Goozeman got the decision, much to the displeasure of some of the ringworms.

Al Grunan won in six rounds from Jimmy Long, in the opinion of those at the ringside, but the best he was handed was a draw. Joe Garcia, after catching everything Freddie Hoppie had to offer in four rounds, was likewise presented with the decision.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6.—Blazing posters and the other publicity that accompanies the heralding of a star in the movies has no lure for Paavo Nurmi, marvel of the cinder and indoor track. At least fame on the screen cannot compete in Nurmi's Finnish mind with the ambition to become known to the present and coming generations as the world's greatest runner.

Nurmi has come to California and gone and he hasn't signed a movie contract. And it isn't because he has been offered none, according to his manager, Hugo Quist. Two or three screen magnates have been after him for some time and while he was in Los Angeles he was offered several agreements which would have permitted him to train in the balmy climate of the southern California city and augment his scanty income as a mechanical draughtsman.

But the appeal was not great enough. Mr. Quist, however, intimated that the motion picture firms wanted the fleet Finn for the advertisement he would give them rather than for his histrionic capabilities. In other words, the offers probably weren't tempting enough.

Perhaps they thought, and rightly, that they could not keep him in a setting long enough. Judging from his appearances on the west coast, both in running togs and street clothes, he would figure well in a fade-out.

The reason, however, that the phantom would not seriously consider a movie offer is that he has very definite ambitions touching the cinder path with which he will let nothing interfere. In short he wants to capture every world running record from the half mile up and place such records as will stay in each event for some time.

Holding more than thirty records in the middle distances, he now has his mind set on the half-mile. He is now en route to Boston, and either there or at some other place in the east he hopes to set a new world's record in the half before he leaves in about three weeks for his homeland. Then he wants to lower his record time for the mile to something like four minutes and six or seven seconds. After that he intends to rest a month or two before he begins training for the longer distances, three miles and up.

The trip, taken ostensibly as a honeymoon, may develop some real action for the heavyweight in one or two bouts with foreign boxers.

ELECTRIC LINES ENJOY BIRTHDAY

First Street Railway Started In Richmond, Virginia, On May 4, 1888

By J. C. ROYLE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Continuous electric street railway operation is thirty-seven years old. On May 4, 1888, Frank J. Sprague started in Richmond, Virginia, the first complete overhead trolley system which is still operating.

At that time there were ten companies making more or less futile attempts to run, but within two years after the Richmond line started service there were 200 companies carrying passengers over 1200 miles of tracks.

Today there are 880 electric railway lines in the United States running over 42,000 miles of track with 100,000 cars and carrying between sixteen and seventeen billion passengers annually. From the most accurate figures available, there are in addition about 25,000 automotive busses in commission carrying a billion and a half passengers, so that despite the tremendous strides of the motor bus, that industry still is far behind the electric roads in patrons served.

Electric Railroads

The electric railroads, in fact, are themselves rapidly absorbing many of the bus routes. Over 170 railway companies have bought busses in a year. Popularity of the automobile has not checked street railway expansion. The "riding habit" is growing steadily and the average number of rides per person has risen from 32 per year in 1890 to nearly 120 at present.

The street car lines employ approximately 300,000 whole time workers and 300,000 part time hands who make electric railway supplies. About 550,000 investors hold stocks or bonds in electric railway companies, their securities totaling over $6,000,000,000 in value. In addition $4,000,000,000 is invested in factories and industries making supplies for the carriers.

First Street Line

The first street railroad to run commercially in the country was operated in Cleveland in 1884, the cars establishing electric connections through an underground trolley running in a slotted wooden box.

The development of the overhead trolley is accredited to J. Henry, who built the second practical line in Kansas City in 1885. That line developed not only the overhead trolley but the trolley rope since at the start, it was necessary for a small boy to ride on the top of each car to see that the trolley did not come off the wire. The difficulties of early operations can be estimated from the fact that Henry could secure copper wire only in sixty foot lengths and had to use horse shoe nails in bonding the rails of his line.

In Good Shape

Despite the competition which faces them, the traction companies today are in shape to better their earnings for this year. Generation of electric current has increased and efficiency has made large strides, helped by betterment of personnel and the hooking up of super power circuits. The financial structures of the traction companies have been rehabilitated in the majority of cases. The roads are in better physical condition and fares have been advanced sufficiently to cover added costs of labor and operation. The average for 272 cities of 25,000 population or over now is 7.49 cents.

MONTROSE NOTES

MONTROSE, May 6.—With about half the membership of the Montrose Chamber of Commerce present last night, James Brown handed in his resignation as president, requesting that it be accepted at once. George Wales Farrand, secretary, read the revised by-laws of the newly merged organization to be known as the Montrose-La Crescenta Chamber of Commerce. On motion made by Theo. Belanger the by-laws were moved for acceptance when H. Alden objected to such a hasty method, stating the old by-laws called for a notice of such meeting and business and that the revised by-laws be read at two consecutive meetings before rejection or acceptance. Whereupon Mr. Belanger withdrew his motion.

Under the head of new business Mr. Clark moved that the secretary be instructed to write notices of the business of the next meeting, when the revision of by-laws will again come up for hearing. The motion was passed.

M. J. O'Leary of the La Crescenta Chamber of Commerce asked for the assistance of the Montrose chamber in the matter of reducing the bus rate to the valley.

After a motion by Sheridan Young the chamber indorsed Better Homes Week, under chairmanship of Mrs. A. C. Haskins. Complaints against the high gas bills were so numerous the secretary was instructed to take the matter up with the Railroad commission.

As chairman of the parks committee Mr. Clark stated the cement work had been completed by Mr. Moore, local contractor, under supervision of the county superintendent, but the committee needed about $130 to complete paying bills. The chamber agreed to pay balance.

Mr. Brown, who has been the president since the organization of the Montrose Chamber of Commerce, thanked his supporters for the splendid co-operation given him and assured members of his hearty co-operation in their work in the future. He explained that his out-of-town business demanded his undivided attention. On motion by William Hickey a rising vote of thanks was accorded the resigning president. Meeting adjourned to June.

Great excitement reigns in the Montrose school as the little folk are preparing for their May Day fete to be given Friday. In conjunction with the fete the school will have Arbor Day ceremonies when each room will have two trees planted. The program will be given on the east side of the grounds, the spectators sitting in the corridors. Costumes for the affair have been made by members of the P.-T. A., assisted by the teachers. Ice cream, cake and other goodies have been provided for the day, which also will have its business side, as P.-T. A. members will elect officers for the coming year. Montrose P.-T. A., through its president, Mrs. C. J. Rienhard, invites all to attend.

Montrose Boy Scout troop will participate in the Court of Honor ceremonies to be held Friday night in the Sparr Heights Community house. La Crescenta troop and Girl Scouts also will be awarded their merit badges.

MEN'S STRAW HAT SEASON DROPS IN

Despite Coolish Weather Lid Fashioned for Summer Makes Appearance

By EDNA MARSHALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The nipping breezes of a coolish spring notwithstanding, or as the facetious suggest, with their help, the male straw hat season has been blown into these parts nearly two weeks ahead of its ordinary mid-May advent.

Whether the same spring winds blew away the winter felts of those who now sport "straws," and their progressive souls could not bear to buy new "back numbers"; whether the thatched roofs came up from the south where they've been in vogue for a month or more, or whether the men are trying to emulate the women in showing off their summer bonnets early, is a question.

At any rate they are here—and at the very minute when the bravest are trying them out on the public, designers are busy in that section east of Greenwich Village where most of American straw hats are produced, cogitating shapes and styles and hues for next year.

Current Shapes

This year's shapes, as demonstrated by the hardy ones who paraded them on Sunday, have wide brims with crowns that slightly "bell." Individual hat bands of bright colors and odd design are the thing—to give individuality to the spring modes. And color may be introduced into the hats themselves next year on a large scale, according to forecasts.

It has only been a few years now that men's straw hats change in style with the seasons. To M. R. Litman, who has been making summer headgear for men for more than fifteen years, is said to go the credit for contriving the idea that men's hats, as women's, should be made to match various sorts of faces. The round faced man, he maintained, could not wear the same narrow brimmed hat the thin faced man should wear. And so he began working on style features.

"Now men's hats are as much in accord with physical differences in their wearer's appearances as shoes or suits or ties," he allows. "New York is the straw hat center, with hundreds of factories. But there are factories inland, which wait with bated breath for the dictum on next year's style, now being considered by the makers in Greenwich Village."

PEACH GROWERS

ATLANTA, May 6.—Peach and apple growers of the southeast expect large gross receipts for their crops this year, although the condition of peaches averages only 86 per cent and apples 87 as compared with last year. Recent cold snaps have hurt apples in north Georgia.

MERCHANTS GIVE VIEWS ON STREET

Propose Central Avenue Be Made Boulevard; Remove All Speed Restriction

Designation of Central avenue as a boulevard its entire length, establishment of boulevard stops at all cross streets and removal of low-speed restrictions were unanimously recommended today by the Glendale Merchants' association to the City Council.

The action followed request from members of the council that the association express its view on a proposal to place Central avenue from Colorado street to Broadway in the fifteen-mile zone. The proposal was strongly opposed.

Under the provisions of the recommendation to be made to the council, Central avenue would be a main thoroughfare to Los Angeles, and would be termed a "fast through street" from the north city limits to San Fernando road.

Diagonal Parking

A recommendation will also be made to the council by the association that all diagonal parking spaces be plainly marked in yellow throughout the city, beginning with the business district.

An organization to be formed as a unit within the merchants' association will be formed at a meeting called for tomorrow noon at the Egyptian Village cafe for the purpose of fostering a trade-at-home movement. All members of the Merchants' association were invited to attend tomorrow's organization meeting.

Charles J. Hatz, president of the association, was given three rousing cheers by nearly seventy-five members at today's luncheon. In a short talk Hatz, who was appointed a member of the City Council yesterday, declared that he "feels greatly the honor conferred upon him by the appointment."

He asked the confidence and the support of the members of the association.

NEW YORK CLOSING

By W. S. COUSINS
For International News Service

NEW YORK, May 6.—Stock prices in every department of the market moved forward today as the result of one of the heaviest buying movements of the year. Beginning with the public utility stocks, the movement spread to the oils, then to the rails and finally broadened out into the industrials.

Such prominent stocks as American Can, American Ice, Frisco common and numerous utility shares exceeded all of their former high-price records for the year and in some cases for their history.

Public utilities kept the market boiling in the afternoon period, in which total sales were near a million shares for the two-hour period.

Frisco common led the way to higher prices for the railroad shares with an advance to 81, the highest in its history.

Reading sold above 81, and the usual run of speculative rails went up the line, with Rock Island an aggressive leader.

Money rates were steady. Sterling moved up to a new high at $4.86⅞. Grain prices snapped back to 6c a bushel and cotton recovered a portion of its recent losses.

American Can gained 4½ points and established a new high record at 186½. Sears-Roebuck reached 171¾, up 3 points on active trading. Standard Oil of New Jersey was a leader in the oils, with an advance to a new high for the movement at 43⅝. Willys-Overland common exceeded its best previous record with an advance to 18¼ on heavy trading. Utah Securities sold up to 119½, for a further gain of 10 points. Consolidated Gas reached 84½ on the movement and Columbia Gas sold at a new high, at 63.

Industrial stocks made a strong tone in the last hour. American Can spurted to a new high, at 188; Utah Securities reached 120, for a total gain of 11 points, and Cast Iron pipe gained 4½.

The volume of trading was the largest since March 17, when 2,400,000 shares changed hands. COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

Pity the poor newspaper reporter. Poorest paid among the professions, we read in David Lawrence's most recent dispatch that even the president of these United States, Calvin Coolidge, is not going to stand back of the statements made through the "Whitehouse spokesman," which is a dictated account of the president's answers to correspondents' questions.

It has been the habit of people high in public life to ofttimes vehemently declare they have been misquoted. Sometimes they are, for the spoken and written word are two entirely different things. The reporter must interpret the thought in the closest language possible.

Again, people are not completely quoted, which is the cause of much embarrassment. One sentence of a speech standing alone may be startling, vain or vulgar. Tied together with a paragraph of explanation and it is not. The reporter may correctly engross the entire thought, yet through exigencies of editorial makeup, telegraph limitations, or purposeful maliciousness on the part of someone or other, the statement is garbled.

So much for that. The president hereafter denies that he has said anything. Which in itself is a poor recommendation!

Wealthy residents will have noted already, it is likely, that tax rates in California are no higher, and in instances not so high, as in Florida, which has been harping on the subject. And if anyone only stopped to think for a moment, tax rates are immaterial consideration anyway, so long as any one particular political subdivision doesn't bond itself too heavily.

Here's the whole proposition in a nutshell: Taxes are paid for the cost of government. Good government, good schools, good public improvements are cheap at almost any price, it is said. Bonds are levied to pay for those things which a current tax rate cannot immediately amortize. It is a system of credit which costs as much as $2.30 for every $1 worth of improvements.

If you pay low taxes, you have cheap government. Also, there is a tendency to bond to the maximum capacity. Shortly, the taxpayer finds he is paying two prices for what he might obtain for less elsewhere. Florida or California can have equally low tax rates. But remember, you get what you pay for and what you vote for, nothing more, nothing less.

Within thirty days it is going to be a misdemeanor to throw a lighted article from a vehicle while riding through the country in California. The governor has signed such a bill, passed by the Legislature and in due process it becomes a law.

The fire danger this summer in California will be equally as great as it has been the past few years and it is up to each individual to take measures for the prevention of conflagration. A carelessly thrown match, cigaret, cigar or firecracker is no different than applying a torch to tinder.

And that's that!

Council Minutes

Following are the minutes of the City Council in session May 5, as compiled by the city clerk:

BULL'S STAMPEDE HITS JULY WHEAT

Rush That Sent May Crop Skyrocketing Felt on Chicago Exchange

By O. L. SCOTT

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925.

CHICAGO, May 6.—A bull stampede in July wheat of the same character as that which sent the May delivery of wheat up to $2.05 early this year, and with $2 again the goal, is being freely talked of on the Board of Trade. But this time the feeling for success isn't registering so generally.

The claim is being advanced by the same leaders who were out in front of the big advance in the May delivery, that the shortage in world supplies which failed to develop at this time, will come before September, because of the estimated small 60,000,000 bushels carryover of wheat, and the prospect for a hugely curtailed winter wheat crop.

"When that shortage becomes evident, as it will in my opinion, two dollar wheat is assured," Arthur W. Cutten, the bull leader who made and lost tremendous profits in the run-up and collapse of prices on May delivery of wheat, is quoted as saying.

He is reported to be just one of the big leaders who switched their affections from May wheat and turned to July when prices were down around $1.35 for that delivery. Millions of bushels have been taken in that delivery at the low prices and are still being taken in.

General Trade

This time, though, it is proving more difficult to interest the general trade which was hard hit by the fiasco in the collapse of May wheat during the last of March and first of April.

The private estimates of winter wheat crop of only 424,000,000 bushels are being taken with a grain of salt by conservative traders. They think that the whole complexion of the crop condition has been changed by excellent weather during the last half of April. It is also pointed out that the crop is exceptionally early with predictions that some southern Illinois wheat will be ready for the market late in June.

But July wheat already is stepping out into the leadership on the board with the differential with that delivery and May delivery cut to eight cents. Whether the bulls are going to get their stampede under way successfully is however, a question which many prominent traders think can only be answered in the negative because of crop conditions.

SHOE FACTORIES

LYNN, Mass., May 6.—Lynn shoe factories are on a open shop basis for the first time in twenty-five years. The agreement with the union has expired and manufacturers refuse to sign a new agreement until the controversy between the rival unions, the Amalgamated Shoe Workers of America and the Boot and Shoe Workers' union is settled.

Bootlegging Tax Free In Canada, Court Rules

OTTAWA, May 6.—Bootlegging is a tax-free industry in Canada. The supreme court of Canada ruled that income derived from the illegal sale of spirituous liquors was not taxable, and the rum-running fraternity is highly elated thereby. The judgment supported an Ontario bootlegger in his fight against the Toronto collector. The court held that it was unconstitutional to seek to levy legal taxes on illegal revenues.

Carolyn Lundstrom, her sister, who was co-defendant in the case, but acquitted, was refused permission to visit Mrs. Day, jr., in jail.
